

The FLAG

FREEDOM, TRUTH & JUSTICE

A return to the 1930's?

WILL IT BE GREAT SLUMP

ACCORDING TO 'NEW LABOUR' and their 'spin doctors' everything in the economy is steady, unemployment is relatively low, inflation is under control and interest rates are a bit like a summer's day.....just before the thunderstorm.

There are several basic problems which could cause such an economic thunderstorm.

- The collapse of far eastern economies is now starting to seriously affect companies in the UK.
- The fiasco over the single European currency is leading to uncertainty - always a core problem.
- 'New Labour' is failing to deliver on even its most basic of promises - the N.H.S., social security, etc.
- the current wage round is not going well - Blair's government might survive this but it will be at a cost.

Combined, these factors are already causing disquiet at senior levels in the City of London. One senior City source is telling our best clients to expect a recession in September or October. If we had a strong government, a strong currency and the single currency and with 'New Labour' trying to be all things to all men, it could slip over into a recession as the capital starts drying up."

The Cash Is Running Out!

IN 1997 millions of British people received hundreds of millions of pounds from the conversion of Building Societies into limited companies. Some of this money was reinvested, but a considerable proportion of it has found its way into the shops and then into wholesalers and manufacturers.

This gave Britain a steady boost throughout the second half of 1997. However this huge cash handout has now come to a halt. On top of this many people who are self-employed have been hit by the change in rules over payment of income tax. Some people have been having to find continually low inflation rate over the last few months.

Some of the money from the building societies is still in the hands of the recipients, but it is clear that much of the spending of this in 1998 will be on foreign holidays which, although very pleasant for those concerned, will not benefit the British economy.

With less cash being spent and less available in people's pockets sales in the high street are likely to suffer when compared with last year.

The crunch would seem likely to come in the second half when sales will be disappointing compared to

The Single Currency Fiasco

Thanks to the vacillation of both the Conservatives and Labour Governments, Britain now finds itself in the worst of all possible worlds. We are neither in nor out of the Single European Currency. More and more economists are coming to agree with the National Democrats that the best of the three options is to permanently stay out of this 'rigged' currency.

Britain would then be at least partly free to pursue its own economic goals, set its own tax rates and determine its own economic future.

But of the remaining two options the worst economically is to be sitting on the fence because it leads to uncertainty, because those multinational firms that want Britain to be

To quote the old adage: all you ever get from sitting on the fence is splinters in your behind.

The resultant uncertainty over this policy, or lack of policy, is exactly the type of economic situation which causes panic and chaos. If the single currency is to go ahead in parts of Europe, then the financial specula-

WHE Yama of £1 lapse has c crisis
South
sia ha
I.M.F.
One certa whet gangs much close Unfo
towa is no

A return to the 1930's?

- There are several basic problems which could cause such an economic downturn
- The collapse of far eastern economies is now starting to seriously affect companies
- The fiasco over the single European currency is leading to uncertainty - always a
- 'New Labour' is failing to deliver on even its most basic of promises - the N.H.S., so
- is already demanding action - which under a Labour government is likely to lead to econo
- the current wage round is not going well - Blair's government might survive this
- demands towards the end of '98 - again fueling financial instability.

Combined, these factors are already causing disquiet at senior levels in the City of London. One telling our best clients to expect a recession in September or October. If we had a strong government the single currency and with 'New Labour' trying to be all things to all men, it could slip over into a capital starts drying up."

The Cash Is Running Out!

IN 1997 millions of British people received hundreds of millions of pounds from the conversion of Building Societies into limited companies. Some of this money was re-invested, but a considerable proportion of it has found its way into the shops and then into wholesalers and manufacturers.

This gave Britain a steady boost throughout the second half of 1997. However this huge cash handout has now come to a halt. On top of this many people who are self-employed have been hit by the change in rules over payment of income tax. Some people have been having to find nearly two years income tax all in one go and it all had to be paid by 31st January instead of being able to phase payments.

This has taken a lot of money out of circulation which may explain the continually low inflation rate over the last few months.

Some of the money from the building societies is still in the hands of the recipients, but it is clear that much of the spending of this in 1998 will be on foreign holidays which, although very pleasant for those concerned, will not benefit the British economy.

With less cash being spent and less available in people's pockets sales in the high street are likely to suffer when compared with last year.

The crunch would seem likely to come in the second half when sales will be disappointing compared to the rush of 1997. Again this meshes in with other factors to cause some uncertainty and doubt about the future in September or October this year.

The Single Currency Fiasco

Thanks to the vacillation of both the Conservatives and Labour Governments, Britain now finds itself in the worst of all possible worlds. We are neither in nor out of the Single European Currency. More and more economists are coming to agree with the National Democrats that the best of the three options is to permanently stay out of this 'rigged' currency.

Britain would then be at least partly free to pursue its own economic goals, set its own tax rates and determine its own economic future.

But of the remaining two options the worst economically is to be sitting on the fence because it leads to uncertainty, because those multinational firms that want Britain to be part of the Single Currency are left unhappy and the majority of businesses that want Britain to stay out are left with the, almost certainly correct, belief that we will be dragged in at some future date.

To quote the old adage: all you ever get from sitting on the fence is splinters in your behind.

The resultant uncertainty over this policy, or lack of policy, is exactly the type of economic situation which causes panic and chaos. If the single currency is to go ahead in parts of Europe, then the financial speculators may well see Britain - neither in nor out - as an uncertain market in which to place their money.... and today it is the financial speculator that can trigger off a collapse in confidence - a slump!

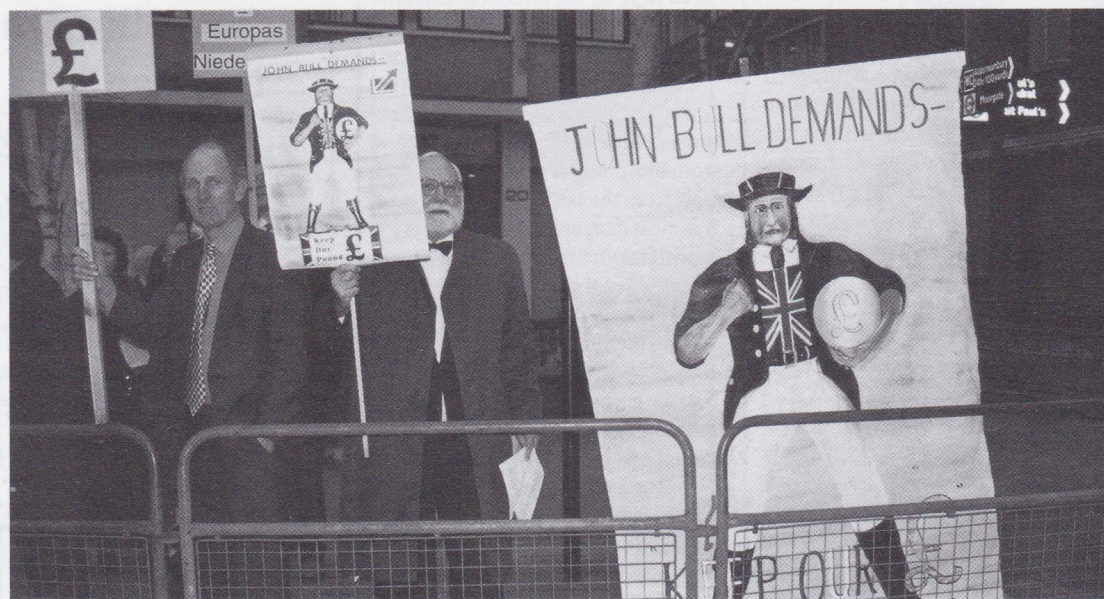

Kohl Meets Combined Resistance

WHEN Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany came to London to receive the Freedom of the City he was met by the combined forces of resistance to domination by his European Union.

Gathering outside the Guildhall in London were the members of a number of anti-EU groups with their respective banners, placards and leaflets. The slogans on the placards varied from the blunt: "Britain Out" to the picturesque with pictures of John Bull.

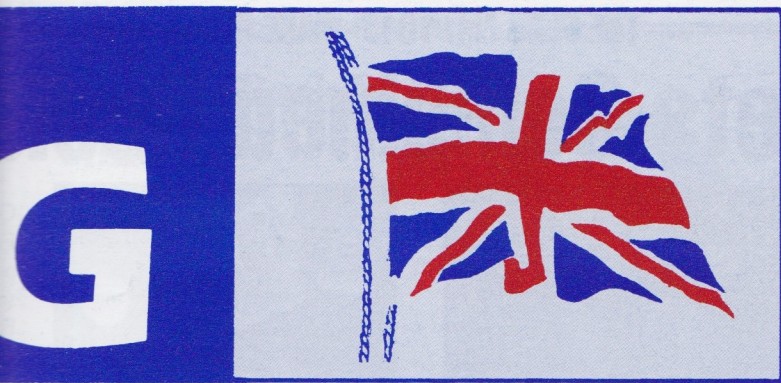

With about 20 members of the National Democrats present the event was truly a combined and co-operative effort which gained substantial television and newspaper coverage.

Contd. on page 2.

FIND OUT MORE ABOUT THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATS

0181 4

SPECIAL

The Fight Against The Paedophile Monsters
Activities - Demonstrations - Interviews
Individual Cases
Pages 4 & 5

ISSN 0950-2912 ISSUE No. 101.

FREEDOM, TRUTH & JUSTICE

50P

WILL IT BE THE GREAT SLUMP OF '98?

'NEW LABOUR' and their 'spin doctors' everything in the economic garden is rosy - Britain's economy is growing, employment is relatively low, inflation is under control and interest rates are reasonably low - everything is rosy - a perfect day.....just before the thunderstorm.

Several basic problems which could cause such an economic thunderstorm:-

The rise of far eastern economies is now starting to seriously affect companies in Britain and the West.

The move over the single European currency is leading to uncertainty - always a contributory factor in economic troubles.

'New Labour' is failing to deliver on even its most basic of promises - the N.H.S., social security benefits, the environment, transport - the Left's inaction - which under a Labour government is likely to lead to economic instability.

The current wage round is not going well - Blair's government might survive this round, but it will lead to growing frustration and higher interest rates at the end of '98 - again fueling financial instability.

These factors are already causing disquiet at senior levels in the City of London. One senior City sympathetic dealer told The Flag: "We are already starting to expect a recession in September or October. If we had a strong government it would probably only be a recession, but with uncertainty over the future and with 'New Labour' trying to be all things to all men, it could slip over into a full scale slump, especially when the current wave of investment starts to dry up."

The Single Currency Fiasco

Thanks to the vacillation of both the Conservatives and Labour Governments, Britain now finds itself in the worst of all possible worlds. We are neither in nor out of the Single European Currency. More and more economists are coming to agree with the National Democrats that the best of the three options is to permanently stay out of this 'rigged' currency.

Britain would then be at least partly free to pursue its own economic goals, set its own tax rates and determine its own economic future.

But of the remaining two options the worst economically is to be sitting on the fence because it leads to uncertainty, because those multinational firms that want Britain to be

To quote the old adage: all you ever get from sitting on the fence is splinters in your behind.

The resultant uncertainty over this policy, or lack of policy, is exactly the type of economic situation which causes panic and chaos. If the single currency is to go ahead in parts of Europe, then the financial specula-

The Far East Crash

WHEN THE JAPANESE brokers, Yamaichi, went bankrupt with debts of £14.6 billion it triggered a collapse of Asian money markets and has created a major world economic crisis. Nearby countries such as South Korea, Thailand and Indonesia have had to go cap-in-hand to the I.M.F. to be bailed out.

One of the underlying problems is certainly the level of corruption whether from the Japanese Yakusa gangsters to the Indonesian economy much of which is controlled by the close family of President Suharto. Unfortunately because of the trend towards globalisation this collapse is now starting to have serious con-

Several basic problems which could cause such an economic thunderstorm:-

Use of far eastern economies is now starting to seriously affect companies in Britain and the West.

Over the single European currency is leading to uncertainty - always a contributory factor in economic troubles.

'Our' is failing to deliver on even its most basic of promises - the N.H.S., social security benefits, the environment, transport - the Left leading action - which under a Labour government is likely to lead to economic instability.

Wage round is not going well - Blair's government might survive this round, but it will lead to growing frustration and higher unemployment by the end of '98 - again fueling financial instability.

Factors are already causing disquiet at senior levels in the City of London. One senior City sympathetic dealer told The Flag: "We are already expecting a recession in September or October. If we had a strong government it would probably only be a recession, but with uncertainty over the future and with 'New Labour' trying to be all things to all men, it could slip over into a full scale slump, especially when the current wave of investment is winding up."

The Single Currency Fiasco

Thanks to the vacillation of both the Conservatives and Labour Governments, Britain now finds itself in the worst of all possible worlds. We are neither in nor out of the Single European Currency. More and more economists are coming to agree with the National Democrats that the best of the three options is to permanently stay out of this 'rigged' currency.

Britain would then be at least partly free to pursue its own economic goals, set its own tax rates and determine its own economic future.

But of the remaining two options the worst economically is to be sitting on the fence because it leads to uncertainty, because those multinational firms that want Britain to be part of the Single Currency are left unhappy and the majority of businesses that want Britain to stay out are left with the, almost certainly correct, belief that we will be dragged in at some future date.

To quote the old adage: all you ever get from sitting on the fence is splinters in your behind.

The resultant uncertainty over this policy, or lack of policy, is exactly the type of economic situation which causes panic and chaos. If the single currency is to go ahead in parts of Europe, then the financial speculators may well see Britain - neither in nor out - as an uncertain market in which to place their money.... and today it is the financial speculator that can trigger off a collapse in confidence - a slump!

The Far East Crash

WHEN THE JAPANESE brokers, Yamaichi, went bankrupt with debts of £14.6 billion it triggered a collapse of Asian money markets and has created a major world economic crisis. Nearby countries such as South Korea, Thailand and Indonesia have had to go cap-in-hand to the I.M.F. to be bailed out.

One of the underlying problems is certainly the level of corruption whether from the Japanese Yakusa gangsters to the Indonesian economy much of which is controlled by the close family of President Suharto. Unfortunately because of the trend towards globalisation this collapse is now starting to have serious consequences in Britain.

In January this year export growth declined sharply and current signs point to a slow down in general manufacturing growth in the U.K. Andrew Cates, U.K. economist at UBS, said manufacturing industry was facing "near recessionary conditions".

So far it is only a question of a slow down of orders from abroad - but over the next few months a series of further problems is likely to arise such as the failure to pay for goods delivered, cancellation of orders already placed, etc.

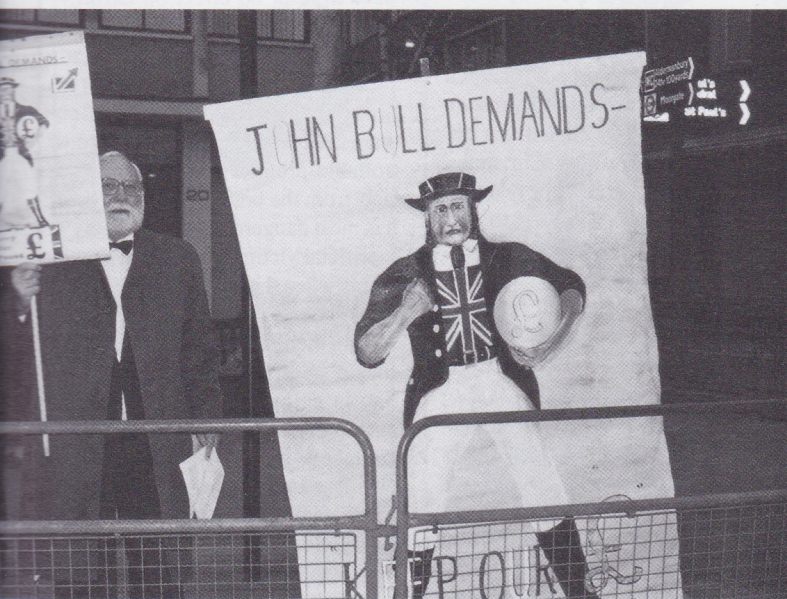

Over the past few years both Labour and Conservative governments have welcomed what they call "investment from the far east" - in reality the buying up of British firms or setting up assembly plants for Japanese components. If the Asian economies continue to be in recession then such investment is likely to stop and the financial weakness of the main company may well lead to closures in the U.K.

Finally, over the past 20 years there has been a continuous advertising and editorial drive in the financial sections of newspapers to persuade individuals and pension funds to invest in the 'tiger economies' of South East Asia. The collapse will lead to a reduction in pension pay-outs and in income from such investments reducing the spending power of people in Britain - a component part of any recession.

Combined Resistance

National Democrat anti-EU Activities

There will be activities in both March and in June Readers wishing to participate should phone their names and telephone numbers through to Head Office on 0181-471 6872 so that you can be kept informed
National Democrat members and non-members welcome

ABOUT NATIONAL DEMOCRATS

0181 471-6872

Directors Against Single Currency

The Confederation of British Industry has regularly maintained that the majority of British businesses are in favour of a single currency. Yet the truth is very different.

Firstly the CBI only represents the very largest companies in the U.K., many of whom are multinationals. Secondly in a poll carried out right at the end of 1997 the Institute of Directors discovered that almost 70% of company directors are opposed to the single currency.

Thirdly we have another poll by venture capitalist 3i showing that only 27% of small and medium sized firms are in favour of joining in the launch of the single currency. Lastly, but perhaps most importantly there is the Federation of Small Businesses which has voted by more than 90% against the single currency.

Election News

Only one patriotic party has been involved in elections recently. Mark Ellis stood for his Pathfinders Party in Sevenoaks, Kent. The result was:

Lib Dem	590	57.4%
Con	402	39.1%
Pathfinder	36	3.5%

Interestingly the Liberal Democrat vote was down by over 20% with an almost exactly equal gain by the Tories. Mark Ellis has agreed to stand for the National Democrats in the May local council elections.

Other election results of interest include:

✓ In Omagh, Northern Ireland Sinn Fein won a seat with an increased poll largely at the expense of the SDLP - proving yet again that Tony Blair's courting of Sinn Fein/IRA and the publicity that the media have given to them is being reflected in their votes. The result was:

Sinn F.	4088	53%	+ 5.9%
UUP	1189	15.4%	+0.8%
SDLP	1095	14.2%	-4.7%
Ind Nat	681	8.8%	+2.0%
DUP	658	8.5%	-1.6%

✓ Despite one by-election in Hampshire and two in Kent there have been no UKIP candidates (or any of their splinter groups). These are two of their strongest areas and the failure to contest is a bit surprising.

✓ In Glasgow the SNP gained the Garrowhill seat from Labour no doubt buoyed by their success over the Scottish Assembly.

✓ In Calderdale, the Liberal Democrats won the Todmorden seat from Labour. The neo-fascist British National Party had previously contested this seat but failed to put up a candidate in this by-election, which hopefully signals a decline in this type of politics.

CIB aims at foot and hits

The Campaign for an Independent

Kohl Meets Combined Resis

A colourful and amusing demonstration

National Democrats, UKIP, Freedom Today, Britain Out! all together

A German television reporter looks on at a banner: "Nein to the E.U."

National Democrat Chairman, Ian Anderson, talks to other demonstration organisers

France Reels Under Single Currency Pressure

Other election results of interest include:

✓ In Omagh, Northern Ireland Sinn Fein won a seat with an increased poll largely at the expense of the SDLP - proving yet again that Tony Blair's courting of Sinn Fein/IRA and the publicity that the media have given to them is being reflected in their votes. The result was:

Sinn F.	4088	53%	+5.9%
UUP	1189	15.4%	+0.8%
SDLP	1095	14.2%	-4.7%
Ind Nat	681	8.8%	+2.0%
DUP	658	8.5%	-1.6%

✓ Despite one by-election in Hampshire and two in Kent there have been no UKIP candidates (or any of their splinter groups). These are two of their strongest areas and the failure to contest is a bit surprising.

✓ In Glasgow the SNP gained the Garrowhill seat from Labour no doubt buoyed by their success over the Scottish Assembly.

✓ In Calderdale, the Liberal Democrats won the Todmorden seat from Labour. The neo-fascist British National Party had previously contested this seat but failed to put up a candidate in this by-election, which hopefully signals a decline in this type of politics.

CIB aims at foot and hits

The Campaign for an Independent Britain which claims to seek support from the members of all political parties has announced the date of its annual public meeting for Saturday 2nd May 1998.

Having just decided to hire a PR man it is slightly surprising that no one bothered to check with anyone active in politics in the UK. If they had they would have discovered that this was the last Saturday before polling day in the May Council elections which are being held in most parts of the UK and, for the first time for four years, right across London.

The last Saturday before polling day is always the busiest day for anyone either standing in local elections or campaigning in them.

Being charitable, it must be assumed that this is an extremely bad gaffe - the alternative explanation doesn't bear thinking about.

GB Out of EU?

One of only two or three UKIP placards at the anti-Kohl demonstration had the slogan: "G.B. out of E.U.". The holder of the placard was asked about this discrepancy, but bluntly said that he didn't care about Northern Ireland and had argued inside U.K.I.P. that Northern Ireland should "given back to Ireland".

Presumably he has forgotten that during both world wars tens of thousands of Ulstermen fought under the Union Jack and that the men of Ulster are as British as those of Surrey, and perhaps more so than some of the inhabitants of our larger cities.

He is one U.K.I.P. member that will not find a welcome inside the National Democrats

France Reels Under Single Currency Pressure

SINCE ITS ELECTION victory last June, the French Government has been keeping a ruthlessly tight rein on the budget in order to qualify for European economic and monetary union.

The Socialist/Communist coalition of Lionel Jospin has been forced to break election promise after election promise in an effort to make sure the country meets the criteria laid down for entry into the single currency.

France's 3.1 million unemployed waited patiently for six months for the Government to implement its election pledge to 'provide new relief for the long-term jobless'. At Christmas their representatives asked the Government for an end-of-year payment to ease their suffering. When this was refused, the penny finally dropped amongst the country's jobless that they were to be the sacrificial victims in France's quest to join the single currency.

Their response was instant and violent. Throughout the country employment offices were besieged, railway lines blocked, streets barricaded and some public service workers came out on strike in sympathy.

Every French man and woman knew of the anguish felt by the unemployed, from the farmer in the countryside to elite Paris society. The latter were rudely disturbed from their usual routine when celebrity restaurant Fouquets was occupied by a jobless demonstration over Christmas. Normal service was only resumed when the restaurant agreed to provide 40 meals for demonstrators occupying a nearby welfare centre. The five star Royal Monceau Hotel on the Champs Elysee was also occupied. A desperate hotel manager offered the demonstrators £1,000 to leave but they refused to be bought off and the occupation was finally broken up by the police but only after huge disruption. The dole queues in France have been lengthening without respite for the last 20 years.

Under the French welfare system, the longer people are unemployed the lower their benefits and the harder it becomes to get a job. The hopelessness and despair of being unemployed in France means that the jobless have nothing to lose by taking their demonstrations on to the streets.

While in Britain demonstrations have little or no effect on Government policy, in France their history is somewhat different.

Professor of Economics at the Sorbonne, Christian de Boissieu warns: "In France, the most uncontrollable protests are the ones that start from the bottom. That is where it is most dangerous. When society's sacrificial victims are in open revolt that is when the Government shakes in its shoes".

But there is little evidence that Jospin's Socialist/Communist coalition is going to change. They are pushing ahead with deregulation in the labour market, reduction of big business taxes, and the ending of some state support for public services. France's conservative opposition, while wringing their hands at the violence, backs the austerity measures and follow Jospin's line: 'European economic and monetary union - whatever the cost'.

In France only the FN of Jean Marie le Pen stands against the onward rush to the European super state. In the regional elections this March they may reap the benefit of the Government's betrayal.

Meets Combined Resistance

A German television reporter looks on at a banner: "Nein to the E.U."

Freedom Today, Britain Out! all together

National Democrat Chairman, Ian Anderson, talks to other demonstration organisers

Reels Under Currency Pressure

Contd. from page 1.

For the first time almost all of the proper anti-E.U. groups were represented. There were members of the Freedom Association, Conservatives Against a Federal Europe, members and former members of U.K.I.P., the Britain Out movement was well represented, even C.I.B. managed to awake from its customary lethargy and was represented by two members of its Executive Council.

The demonstration was orderly, colourful, varied and very good natured. A steady banter was kept up with individual police officers, while boos were largely reserved for the British politicians, or Quislings, as they were rapidly dubbed who were turning up for this ceremony of betrayal. Passers by were broadly sympathetic and many were more than happy to accept leaflets. The National Democrats alone were able to get out over 1,000 leaflets during the event.

Although the early evening was quite chilly the activity warmed up when the Mercedes of Helmut Kohl was spotted in the distance. A special reception had been arranged for this moment and, for the first time for many years, the sounds of an air raid warning siren were heard echoing around the streets of central London, only yards away from where the first bomb fell during the second world war.

This special reception was warmly greeted as appropriate by the demonstrators and was the result of a truly combined effort. The original idea came from John Gouriet of the Freedom Association, the cassette tape was provided by Roy Fairs of This England magazine, the co-ordination was provided by Bob Lomas of the Britain Out! organisation while the extremely loud and effective loudspeaker system was supplied by the National Democrats.

During the earlier part of the demonstration this speaker system had been used effectively to ensure that the guests, even those comfortably ensconced within the Guildhall, were aware of the opposition outside. Alongside slogans of "Britain Out!" and "Union Jack Forever, Euro rag Never!" was the occasional interjection of some blunt slogans in German delivered by Rodney Atkinson of the Conservatives Against a Federal Europe.

All in all an excellent evening, showing what might be achieved if the various organisations agreed to

UKIP Troubles

The demise of UKIP seems to be continuing as problems pile on problems. It has now been revealed that before deserting the ship Alan Sked spent 70% of the party's liquid cash reserves on legal advice presumably concerning the expulsion of the New Alliance members - not exactly a positive use of funds, but one that would fit in with our previous suggestion of a rather shabby deal with some Tories.

However that is now in the past, but more recently we have discovered that out of fifteen members of the Executive which was elected in September, six of them had resigned before the meeting of the Executive in November. If this is the situation at the top then amongst ordinary members it is presumably even worse.

The future seems far from bright as the most pressing question now seems to be, not gearing up for local elections, nor running any major anti-single currency campaigns, but the contest for the leadership. As one UKIP member put it: "It is rapidly becoming a fight for the captaincy of the Titanic."

The four candidates are Bernard Collignon from Surrey, Michael Holmes from Hampshire, Craig MacKinlay from Kent and Gerald Roberts from London. This again emphasises the increasing concentration in the South East with very little elsewhere in the country.

Front runner seems to be Michael Holmes, at least partly because some members are hoping that he will bail the party out of its financial problems.

His political background is rather varied. He admits to voting for the pro-European Liberal Party in both 1974 general elections, then he returned to the Tories for five years, but by 1981 he was back again standing for the Liberals in local elections.

In his leadership election leaflet Michael Holmes states that he believes a new name is needed and so he is proposing a consultation exercise on this.

As if this isn't enough to ensure that members and officials are spending most of their time on internal problems we also have a new ginger group: The Reform Group led by a Mr Cam Poulter who has refused a place on the executive so that he can sit outside and tell them what they are doing wrong.

All in all this once quite serious party is rapidly becoming a laugh-

France Reels Under Currency Pressure

...y last
...t has
...t rein
...y for
...etary
...ition
...ed to
...ction
...re the
...down
...cy.
...oyed
...is for
...nt its
...w re-
...". At
...tives
...end-
...uffer-
...the
...ere to
...nce's
...y.
...d vio-
...em-
...rail-
...aded
...rkers
...athy.

Every French man and woman knew of the anguish felt by the unemployed, from the farmer in the countryside to elite Paris society. The latter were rudely disturbed from their usual routine when celebrity restaurant Fouquets was occupied by a jobless demonstration over Christmas. Normal service was only resumed when the restaurant agreed to provide 40 meals for demonstrators occupying a nearby welfare centre. The five star Royal Monceau Hotel on the Champs Elysee was also occupied. A desperate hotel manager offered the demonstrators £1,000 to leave but they refused to be bought off and the occupation was finally broken up by the police but only after huge disruption. The dole queues in France have been lengthening without respite for the last 20 years. Under the French welfare system, the longer people are unemployed the lower their benefits and the harder it becomes to get a job. The hopelessness and despair of being unemployed in France means that the jobless have nothing to lose by taking their demonstrations on to the streets.

While in Britain demonstrations have little or no effect on Government policy, in France their history is somewhat different. Professor of Economics at the Sorbonne, Christian de Boissieu warns: "In France, the most uncontrollable protests are the ones that start from the bottom. That is where it is most dangerous. When society's sacrificial victims are in open revolt that is when the Government shakes in its shoes". But there is little evidence that Jospin's Socialist/Communist coalition is going to change. They are pushing ahead with deregulation in the labour market, reduction of big business taxes, and the ending of some state support for public services. France's conservative opposition, while wringing their hands at the violence, backs the austerity measures and follow Jospin's line: 'European economic and monetary union - whatever the cost'. In France only the FN of Jean Marie le Pen stands against the onward rush to the European super state. In the regional elections this March they may reap the benefit of the Government's betrayal.

for many years, the sounds of an air raid warning siren were heard echoing around the streets of central London, only yards away from where the first bomb fell during the second world war.

This special reception was warmly greeted as appropriate by the demonstrators and was the result of a truly combined effort. The original idea came from John Gouriet of the Freedom Association, the cassette tape was provided by Roy Fairs of This England magazine, the co-ordination was provided by Bob Lomas of the Britain Out! organisation while the extremely loud and effective loudspeaker system was supplied by the National Democrats.

During the earlier part of the demonstration this speaker system had been used effectively to ensure that the guests, even those comfortably esconced within the Guildhall, were aware of the opposition outside. Alongside slogans of "Britain Out!" and "Union Jack Forever, Euro rag Never!" was the occasional interjection of some blunt slogans in German delivered by Rodney Atkinson of the Conservatives Against a Federal Europe.

All in all an excellent evening, showing what might be achieved if the various organisations opposed to Britain's membership of the EU can continue to work together without letting personalities and party differences get in the way of the more important struggle against E.U. domination.

The new National Democrat anti-EU leaflet has had to be reprinted after the first 25,000 run sold out within just three weeks. The second run of 50,000 has already been printed and some of these have already gone out to branches and individuals MacKinlay from Kent and Gerald Roberts from London. This again emphasises the increasing concentration in the South East with very little elsewhere in the country.

Front runner seems to be Michael Holmes, at least partly because some members are hoping that he will bail the party out of its financial problems.

His political background is rather varied. He admits to voting for the pro-European Liberal Party in both 1974 general elections, then he returned to the Tories for five years, but by 1981 he was back again standing for the Liberals in local elections.

In his leadership election leaflet Michael Holmes states that he believes a new name is needed and so he is proposing a consultation exercise on this.

As if this isn't enough to ensure that members and officials are spending most of their time on internal problems we also have a new ginger group: The Reform Group led by a Mr Cam Poulter who has refused a place on the executive so that he can sit outside and tell them what they are doing wrong.

All in all this once quite serious party is rapidly becoming a laughing stock.....which is a great shame for their many members and past members who once saw this party as the way of getting Britain out of the clutches of the E.U.

Item 1: William Hague signalled his approval of the honour awarded to Helmut Kohl by slapping down John Redwood who had dared to question the decision. John Redwood had announced his intention of finding out how much influence the government had exerted over the City to ensure the award was given. He also claimed that many in the City were deeply embarrassed by the award.

Item 2: In his acceptance speech Helmut Kohl said he believed the City had long accepted that the single currency was coming and that Wall Street would "get used to the idea". Something similar to a previous German statement about the loss of sovereignty by the Czechs and Poles.

Anti-EU leaflet selling in thousands

THE EURO €

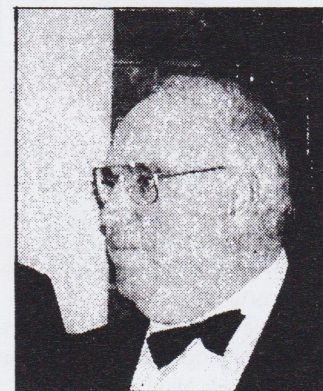

The Liberal Democrats want it now
The Labour Party want it after the next election
The Conservatives will accept it in 10 years
The National Democrats will NEVER accept it

A Single European Currency would mean:-

- Taxes could only be set or reduced with EU approval
- Britain would no longer be able to make its own economic decisions.
- Interest rates would effectively be determined by Germany
- Instead of bringing decision making closer to the people it would take it further away
- Britain would cease to be an independent nation

It's either:
Britain: Free & Independent Or A Euro Super State

Stop Press: Kohl's visit

Item 1: William Hague signalled his approval of the honour awarded to Helmut Kohl by slapping down John Redwood who had dared to question the decision. John Redwood had announced his intention of finding out how much influence the government had exerted over the City to ensure the award was given. He also claimed that many in the City were deeply embarrassed by the award.

Item 2: In his acceptance speech Helmut Kohl said he believed the City had long accepted that the single currency was coming and that Wall Street would "get used to the idea". Something similar to a previous German statement about the loss of sovereignty by the Czechs and Poles.

10,000 Illegal Workers: The Tip of the Iceberg?

In 1997 10,000 foreign nationals were detained for working illegally in Britain. But because of lax laws and the lax enforcement of those laws that do exist no one really knows just how many foreign nationals are working illegally in Britain.

Many of the illegal workers come from Asia but more recently they have been joined by people from Russia, the Ukraine, Lithuania and Poland.

Though swoops on factories are carried out the problem seems to be growing rather than shrinking. In one swoop on a furniture factory in Darlington seven Asian illegal workers were arrested.

The National Democrats are always happy to pass on genuine (but only genuine) information about the presence of illegal workers to the Home Office. Information can be given to the National Democrat Head Office on 0181-471 6872, but please only when you have good reason to believe that the workers are here illegally.

Navy Day: April 1st?

The Royal Navy is to run a recruitment campaign aimed at Muslim women and..... wait for it.....naval chiefs are looking at ways in which yashmaks - the traditional Muslim veil - could be incorporated into the uniform.

French Government bankrupts British firms

According to the Road Haulage Association at least ten transport firms have gone out of business as a direct result of the refusal by the French Government to pay out the compensation that they promised to such firms for losses incurred during the French lorry strike.

Back in November 1996 thousands of British lorries were caught up in this strike and firms suffered enormous losses. Lionel Jospin at the Anglo-French summit last November promised that claims would be processed within three months. But the French bureaucracy which always seems to

London: Home of Islamic T

THE MASSACRE OF 412 villagers in Algeria over Christmas was almost certainly planned and financed from London. The Islamic Salvation Front, who the Algerian Government blames for the atrocity, has its headquarters and fundraising base on London.

They were also behind the Paris bombings eighteen months earlier. The French and Israeli Secret Service have made available to the British Government a huge dossier that exposes the extent of the terrorist organisations in our capital city. It makes pretty grim reading:-

* Gama'a al-Islamiya: Responsible for the Luxor massacre is based in Maida Vale and run by a former terrorist who has been granted asylum in Britain.

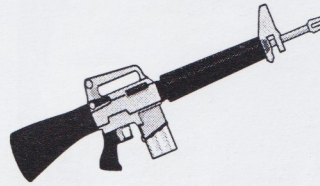

* Taliban: The fanatics from Afghanistan have an office and printworks in London.

* Hamas: The Palestinian terrorists responsible for suicide bombings in Israel put on fundraising events in London and publish their newspaper Filistein al-Muslima from Cricklewood.

* Hizbollah: Behind much of Islamic terrorism in the Middle East, they are based around London's Regent Park Mosque where newspapers and publications are freely sold whose contents are often an incitement to bombing, murder and insurrection.

* Al-Muhajiroun: The fastest growing militant organisation in the world is based in North London run by Syrian, Omar Bakri Mohammed, who, with his wife and five children, are living off income support and disability benefit. They call for the annihilation of all Jews and want to overthrow Western Society and see the establishment of a khilifah - an Islamic state - in Britain.

How on earth did our capital city become such a centre for terrorism? Well it has all happened during the last 18 years of Tory rule when the Thatcher and Major Governments were meant to have been clamping down on those coming to settle in Britain. The main reasons are:-

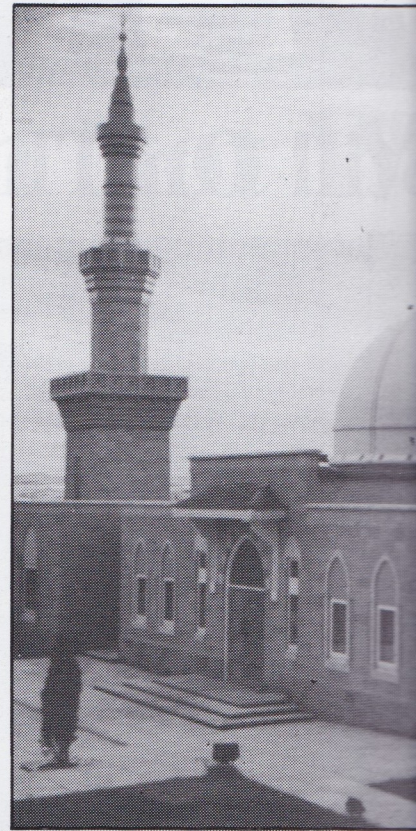

1. Asylum laws that are easily exploited.
2. An increase in the numbers of overseas students.
3. Britain's large Muslim community many of whom are sympathetic to the militants.
4. The British 'liberal' mentality to dissidents.
5. London is an international finance centre.

Despite the concrete evidence provided by France and Israel of the 'London Link' with terrorism. There is little the Government intends to do about it. Home Secretary, Jack Straw, argues that under British law it is not an offence to conspire to commit acts of terrorism abroad. Whatever the evidence provided by France and Israel, unless militants operating in London are caught in possession of guns or explosives, our authorities are helpless.

Mr. Straw also equivocates on what exactly is 'terrorism'. "Should it, for instance, have been illegal to raise funds on behalf of the ANC when Nelson Mandela was branded a terrorist in South Africa?" he asks.

The Home Secretary is also worried about confronting Britain's 'liberal lobby' by bringing in any new legislation. People like Liberty's John

Wadham believe there would be an outcry if there was any change in legislation: "Britain must uphold its present status as a safe haven for the persecuted of the world".

The National Democrats would have no such problem confronting the 'liberal lobby' in Britain. The existence of evidence showing that the two Palestinians who killed themselves and fourteen others while wounding 150 in the Jerusalem bomb last July, both came from London using British passports should be enough to act upon:

- offices and printing works in London used to promote terrorism should be closed down immediately and those working in them deported.
- asylum laws must be dramatically tightened.
- overseas students must be thoroughly vetted and any links with terrorist groups should see them barred.

Target Bogus Migrants - Those In Real Need

WHILE THE LABOUR Government cuts benefits to the sick, the disabled and the single parent in an effort to trim the Social Security budget, there is one group of peo-

Navy Day: April 1st?

The Royal Navy is to run a recruitment campaign aimed at Muslim women and..... wait for it.....naval chiefs are looking at ways in which yashmaks - the traditional Muslim veil - could be incorporated into the uniform.

French Government bankrupts British firms

According to the Road Haulage Association at least ten transport firms have gone out of business as a direct result of the refusal by the French Government to pay out the compensation that they promised to such firms for losses incurred during the French lorry strike.

Back in November 1996 thousands of British lorries were caught up in this strike and firms suffered enormous losses. Lionel Jospin at the Anglo-French summit last November promised that claims would be processed within three months. But the French bureaucracy which always seems to be so convenient to the French and so difficult for everyone else has swung into action and many firms have been forced to re-submit claims.

Meanwhile some small British lorry firms have gone bankrupt causing immense heartache and family tension. So, Thank You very much M. Jospin our partner in the European Union.

Manufacturing Output drops

The latest figures for December 1997 show that manufacturing industry output dropped by half a per cent. Analysts immediately confirmed that the manufacturing industry is on the brink of recession.

Industrial production for the last quarter of 1997 fell 1.1% - the biggest fall since 1991.

Manufacturing industry in Britain has now been hit so badly that it accounts for barely 20% of the economy.

This leaves Britain in a very vulnerable position if it enters the single currency. Germany has made it quite clear that the service section of the economy is its number one target. Without an industrial base it is the service sector which will be difficult to maintain - as Japan, Germany and the U.S.A. are well aware.

whose contents are often an incitement to bombing, murder and insurrection.

★ Al-Muhajiroun: The fastest growing militant organisation in the world is based in North London run by Syrian, Omar Bakri Mohammed, who, with his wife and five children, are living off income support and disability benefit. They call for the annihilation of all Jews and want to overthrow Western Society and see the establishment of a khilifah - an Islamic state - in Britain.

How on earth did our capital city become such a centre for terrorism? Well it has all happened during the last 18 years of Tory rule when the Thatcher and Major Governments were meant to have been clamping down on those coming to settle in Britain. The main reasons are:-

vided by France and Israel of the 'London Link' with terrorism. There is little the Government intends to do about it. Home Secretary, Jack Straw, argues that under British law it is not an offence to conspire to commit acts of terrorism abroad. Whatever the evidence provided by France and Israel, unless militants operating in London are caught in possession of guns or explosives, our authorities are helpless.

Mr. Straw also equivocates on what exactly is 'terrorism'. "Should it, for instance, have been illegal to raise funds on behalf of the ANC when Nelson Mandela was branded a terrorist in South Africa?" he asks.

The Home Secretary is also worried about confronting Britain's 'liberal lobby' by bringing in any new legislation. People like Liberty's John isolation: "Britain must uphold its present status as a safe haven for the persecuted of the world".

The National Democrats would have no such problem confronting the 'liberal lobby' in Britain. The existence of evidence showing that the two Palestinians who killed themselves and fourteen others while wounding 150 in the Jerusalem bomb last July, both came from London using British passports should be enough to act upon:

- offices and printing works in London used to promote terrorism should be closed down immediately and those working in them deported.
- asylum laws must be dramatically tightened.
- overseas students must be thoroughly vetted and any links with terrorist groups should see them barred.

Target Bogus Migrants - Those In Real Need

WHILE THE LABOUR Government cuts benefits to the sick, the disabled and the single parent in an effort to trim the Social Security budget, there is one group of people that is milking the country for all it's worth.

Bogus migrants, people coming to Britain claiming that they are fleeing oppression when they are just looking for hand-outs, are fleecing billions of pounds from vital resources that should be channelled towards Britain's needy.

Just take a look at the facts:-

- Since 1990, 295,000 asylum seekers have arrived in Britain.
- Processing applications takes 12 months.
- While awaiting adjudication applicants are found accommodation and are entitled to all housing and welfare benefits.
- Since 1990 just 10,500 applicants have been found to be genuine refugees.
- Appeals against deportation can take three years.
- Applicants are still entitled to full benefits during the appeals process.
- Since 1990 just 12,700 bogus migrants have been deported
- More than 270,000 are now living illegally in Britain.
- 97% of asylum seekers are bogus migrants.

It makes pretty grim reading doesn't it. Britain is being conned by foreigners whose only reason for arriving in Britain is to milk our benefits system. And who is the Government making pay for their weakness in dealing with this problem? Why none other than our single parents struggling to bring up a family on their own; our disabled battling against all odds to live their lives in security and comfort, and the long-term sick who live on the breadline because they are unable to work.

British people, many who have played their part in moulding the future of this country, are now suffering because outsiders who have nothing to do with our country and no allegiance to Britain are taking advantage of our welfare state.

The National Democrats believe it is a priority to stem the tide of bogus migrants immediately. This can only be done by a drastic change in our immigration procedures. We must:

- ✗ Increase by tenfold the number of immigration officers
- ✗ Increase by tenfold the fines on carriers bringing bogus migrants into the country
- ✗ Introduce a proper 'visa' system prior to embarkation for travel to the U.K.
- ✗ Outlaw 'Immigration Consultant Agencies'
- ✗ Ensure all asylum seekers are held in reception centres
- ✗ Stop all benefits to asylum seekers
- ✗ Speed up the adjudication process

to three weeks

- ✗ Scrap the appeals process

These are measures that must be implemented if Britain is to take care of its own people in need.

30,000 asylum seekers have arrived in Britain in the last ten months. Social security payments to them will top £1,000 million while their applications are examined.

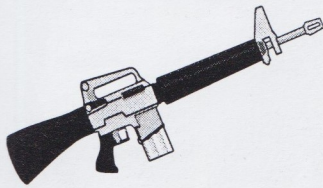

In November 1997 Eurostar brought 348 asylum seekers, nearly all Somalis, who had been living in Italy, but were now in search of more generous welfare benefits. Eurostar is not affected by the Carriers Liability Act so once the asylum seekers disembarked at Waterloo, Eurostar were able to wash their hands of them despite not having the appropriate documents.

Increased fines on carriers to real punitive amounts: £20,000 from the current £2,000, would ensure stricter measures would be taken by carriers to weed out bogus migrants at the point of departure.

London: Home of Islamic Terror

...agers in Algeria over Christ-
...ly planned and financed from
...ation Front, who the Algerian
...he atrocity, has its headquar-
...e on London.

Paris bombings eighteen months
...li Secret Service have made avail-
...nt a huge dossier that exposes the ...ations in our capital city. It makes

1. Asylum laws that are easily exploited.
2. An increase in the numbers of overseas students.
3. Britain's large Muslim community many of whom are sympathetic to the militants.
4. The British 'liberal' mentality to dissidents.
5. London is an international finance centre.

Despite the concrete evidence provided by France and Israel of the 'London Link' with terrorism. There is little the Government intends to do about it. Home Secretary, Jack Straw, argues that under British law it is not an offence to conspire to commit acts of terrorism abroad. Whatever the evidence provided by France and Israel, unless militants operating in London are caught in possession of guns or explosives, our authorities are helpless.

Mr. Straw also equivocates on what exactly is 'terrorism'. "Should it, for instance, have been illegal to raise funds on behalf of the ANC when Nelson Mandela was branded a terrorist in South Africa?" he asks.

The Home Secretary is also worried about confronting Britain's 'liberal lobby' by bringing in any new legislation. People like Liberty's John

Wadham believe there would be an outcry if there was any change in legislation: "Britain must uphold its present status as a safe haven for the persecuted of the world".

The National Democrats would have no such problem confronting the 'liberal lobby' in Britain. The existence of evidence showing that the two Palestinians who killed themselves and fourteen others while wounding 150 in the Jerusalem bomb last July, both came from London using British passports should be enough to act upon:

- offices and printing works in London used to promote terrorism should be closed down immediately and those working in them deported.
- asylum laws must be dramatically tightened.
- overseas students must be thoroughly vetted and any links with terrorist groups should see them barred.

Britain must root out terrorists from London. They are just using our country to further their own ends. David Pryce-Jones, an authority on Muslim-Arab society, has no doubts on that: "They show great sophistication in knowing how a Western society operates and what its weaknesses are. They can exploit the legal system, the human rights and asylum laws and other elements of a decay to which they don't themselves subscribe."

The National Democrats would act swiftly to remove the terrorists before their terrorism erupts in Britain, and if our 'liberal' credentials in the eyes of some people suffer as a result, then that is tough. However the victims of terrorism may applaud such a stand against those who would bomb, maim and murder innocent women and children.

One law for them.....

Neil and Glenys Kinnock earn about £200,000 a year between them. Yet Glenys Kinnock was caught by police in Wiltshire driving a car with a tax disc that was out of date by eight months.

When caught breaking the law, they said that it was all a mix up. They thought the dealer from whom they had bought the car had sorted out the tax. Yet they had been driving it for eight months.

In a statement to The Sun they said: "We gave no further thought to the matter. When the police advised us the car was not taxed we took immediate action to ensure it is paid in full. We have been told by the police that no further action will be taken by them. Naturally we regret that the car was not taxed."

Of course Neil and Glenys are good at interesting explanations such as the one about how they are earning £200,000 plus the equally enormous sums being earned by their offspring all from the European Union - the body that they were always campaigning against when Neil was being paid as a British Member of Parliament.

To be fair, Neil Kinnock probably knows very little about the laws relating to the taxation of motor cars. After all he is the European Commissioner for Transport.

— Holiday Feature — The Politically Incorrect Holiday

The Flag, in its first Holiday Special, has no hesitation in recommending the Cayman Islands as a holiday destination for those readers who can afford something exotic and who are looking for a

Get Bogus Migrants - Not Those In Real Need

...ment cuts benefits to the sick,
...e parent in an effort to trim
...t there is one group of nee-

Despite the concrete evidence provided by France and Israel of the 'London Link' with terrorism. There is little the Government intends to do about it. Home Secretary, Jack Straw, argues that under British law it is not an offence to conspire to commit acts of terrorism abroad. Whatever the evidence provided by France and Israel, unless militants operating in London are caught in possession of guns or explosives, our authorities are helpless.

Mr. Straw also equivocates on what exactly is 'terrorism'. "Should it, for instance, have been illegal to raise funds on behalf of the ANC when Nelson Mandela was branded a terrorist in South Africa?" he asks.

The Home Secretary is also worried about confronting Britain's 'liberal lobby' by bringing in any new legislation. People like Liberty's John outcry if there was any change in legislation: "Britain must uphold its present status as a safe haven for the persecuted of the world".

The National Democrats would have no such problem confronting the 'liberal lobby' in Britain. The existence of evidence showing that the two Palestinians who killed themselves and fourteen others while wounding 150 in the Jerusalem bomb last July, both came from London using British passports should be enough to act upon:

- offices and printing works in London used to promote terrorism should be closed down immediately and those working in them deported.
- asylum laws must be dramatically tightened.
- overseas students must be thoroughly vetted and any links with terrorist groups should see them barred.

London. They are just using our country to further their own ends. David Pryce-Jones, an authority on Muslim-Arab society, has no doubts on that: "They show great sophistication in knowing how a Western society operates and what its weaknesses are. They can exploit the legal system, the human rights and asylum laws and other elements of a decency to which they don't themselves subscribe."

The National Democrats would act swiftly to remove the terrorists before their terrorism erupts in Britain, and if our 'liberal' credentials in the eyes of some people suffer as a result, then that is tough. However the victims of terrorism may applaud such a stand against those who would bomb, maim and murder innocent women and children.

it is paid in full. We have been told by the police that no further action will be taken by them. Naturally we regret that the car was not taxed."

Of course Neil and Glenys are good at interesting explanations such as the one about how they are earning £200,000 plus the equally enormous sums being earned by their offspring all from the European Union - the body that they were always campaigning against when Neil was being paid as a British Member of Parliament.

To be fair, Neil Kinnock probably knows very little about the laws relating to the taxation of motor cars. After all he is the European Commissioner for Transport.

— Holiday Feature —

The Politically Incorrect Holiday

The Flag, in its first Holiday Special, has no hesitation in recommending the Cayman Islands as a holiday destination for those readers who can afford something exotic and who are looking for a holiday location which is politically totally incorrect.

These beautiful islands are a British territory in the Caribbean and boast all the advantages of long hot summers, fine beaches, a relaxed lifestyle, a tolerable crime level, etc.

However the real clincher was the reaction of the island's government to the arrival of the cruise ship Leeward in January. The vessel was occupied by 900 homosexual men, however when it radioed in its routine request for docking, this floating sodomite colony was told to sheer away.

The islands' local government said: Careful research and prior experience has led us to conclude that we cannot count on this group to uphold the standards of appropriate behaviour expected of visitors to the Cayman islands". So if you want a family holiday then this would seem the ideal location for 1998.

ARTICLES

The Flag welcomes articles from members of other anti-EU groups, including reports on activities and photographs

et Bogus Migrants - Not Those In Real Need

ment cuts benefits to the sick, le parent in an effort to trim et, there is one group of people who are just looking for handing to Britain claiming that they are just looking for hand-pounds from vital resources that s Britain's needy.

to three weeks

✕ Scrap the appeals process

These are measures that must be implemented if Britain is to take care of its own people in need.

30,000 asylum seekers have arrived in Britain in the last ten months. Social security payments to them will top £1,000 million while their applications are examined.

In November 1997 Eurostar brought 348 asylum seekers, nearly all Somalis, who had been living in Italy, but were now in search of more generous welfare benefits. Eurostar is not affected by the Carriers Liability Act so once the asylum seekers disembarked at Waterloo, Eurostar were able to wash their hands of them despite not having the appropriate documents.

Increased fines on carriers to real punitive amounts: £20,000 from the current £2,000, would ensure stricter measures would be taken by carriers to weed out bogus migrants at the point of departure.

Immigration consultants waste huge amounts of taxpayers' money by prolonging bogus applications from asylum seekers who are often on legal aid. The agencies are the main source of false claims with immigration consultants advising their clients on how to delay deportation for years, while still claiming benefits. Their activities must be outlawed.

Reception centres where asylum seekers are housed and fed would stop the need for benefits and housing to be provided. A speeded-up application system with no appeal process would ensure that bogus migrants were in and out of the reception centre and the country within three weeks.

The National Democrats accept that our Social Security budget must be reduced, but it must not be our own people in need who suffer. Clamping down on abuses by bogus migrants is preferable to penalising law-abiding British citizens.

against all odds to live their lives in security and comfort, and the long-term sick who live on the breadline because they are unable to work.

British people, many who have played their part in moulding the future of this country, are now suffering because outsiders who have nothing to do with our country and no allegiance to Britain are taking advantage of our welfare state.

The National Democrats believe it is a priority to stem the tide of bogus migrants immediately. This can only be done by a drastic change in our immigration procedures.

We must:

- ✕ Increase by tenfold the number of immigration officers
- ✕ Increase by tenfold the fines on carriers bringing bogus migrants into the country
- ✕ Introduce a proper 'visa' system prior to embarkation for travel to the U.K.
- ✕ Outlaw 'Immigration Consultant Agencies'
- ✕ Ensure all asylum seekers are held in reception centres
- ✕ Stop all benefits to asylum seekers
- ✕ Speed up the adjudication process

PROTEC

Paedophiles Still On The Loose

OUR CHILDREN ARE STILL in danger from paedophiles and from other criminals, from sexual pervers, from drugs, from violence and from the pervasiveness of depravity that has invaded our culture. Films and videos of sickening acts are still easily available and contribute to a society which is failing to give full protection to our children.

Uncle Was Murderer

The murderer of seven year old Donna Marie Gillbank was her mother's brother.

One morning her mother, Mrs June Woon, went to wake up her daughter Donna Marie, but instead found her child raped and murdered before being carefully laid in bed with her favourite toy rabbit. The murderer was Mrs Woon's brother.

Now Mrs Woon is one of the "Mothers Against Murder and Aggression" most of whom have lost children due to violence. They are demanding that life imprisonment for such offences mean life. Her brother was sentenced to life but with a recommendation of 20 years.

Another member of MoMAs is Mandy Everitt, whose son Richard was hacked to death by an Asian gang in Camden. The man who stabbed Richard was given a life sentence

Richard's mother Mandy said: "The Great Train Robbers were given 25 years, yet murderers are let out after eight to twelve years. Is money worth more than life?"

Sado-masochist Video Led To Mother's Murder

10th November 1997: Stephen Leisk, 34, was jailed for life for the abduction and murder of nine year old Scott Simpson.

Leisk had a thirteen year previous history of convictions for sexual assault. The homosexual former soldier was already under the supervision of social workers for previous offences but was housed in a flat opposite a children's playpark in Aberdeen.

It was in this play park that he picked up Scott Simpson. A post mortem showed that Scott had probably fought for his life and attempted to remove the scarf which Leisk had tightened around his neck.

The killer was arrested on the fourth day after the killing when police received a phone call from one of the killer's relatives who was afraid he might be involved in what was then described as the boy's disappearance. The killer subsequently led police to the body of Scott.

Colin Boyd, the Solicitor General in the High Court in Aberdeen said he was concerned that the social work department, which was supervising Leisk while he was on licence, was aware that he was living directly opposite the place where Scott was last seen alive BUT DID NOT TELL THE POLICE!!

Scott Simpson, murdered by Stephen Leisk, already under supervision for previous offences.

The department had also failed to inform the police before the murder that Leisk, a known offender, was living next to the park.

This case completely illustrates the uselessness of the paedophile register even when known paedophiles choose to register.

Scott's mother, Patsy, 32, said that the best tribute to her son would be legislation to let parents know when a convicted paedophile was being housed in their community.

We venture to suggest that an even more fitting tribute would be not to let known paedophiles live in an open community.

Scout Leader Pervert Gets 18 Years

December 12th 1997: David Stanley was given an 18 year prison sentence after Judge Michael Mott called him "a predatory and aggressive paedophile".

He went on to say: "You sought a position with the Scouts to have access to these boys and gained the trust of the parents and the Scouts themselves. You cleverly chose boys who would not complain, some were as young as 10 years old".

Vicar Gets Three Years

Rapist Freed to kill

Victor Farrant

29th January 1998: Victor Farrant,

dered before being carefully laid in bed with her favourite toy rabbit. The murderer was Mrs Woon's brother.

Now Mrs Woon is one of the "Mothers Against Murder and Aggression" most of whom have lost children due to violence. They are demanding that life imprisonment for such offences mean life. Her brother was sentenced to life but with a recommendation of 20 years.

Sado-masochist Video Led To Mother's Murder

Stuart Hulse murdered Shirley Brown after watching sado-masochist video.

Ten year old Richard Brown returned to his mother's home in Lowton, near Wigan on Sunday after spending the weekend with his father to find his mother missing. He alerted neighbours who found his mother, Shirley Brown sexually assaulted, strangled with her own tights, bound hand and foot and wrapped in her own duvet and left at the foot of her own bed.

Shirley Brown had been sexually assaulted and murdered by Stuart Hulse, 37, also of Lowton. Before attacking her he had been to a sex party where a video had been shown depicting pornographic scenes of extreme sado-masochism and bondage and in which a woman was tied up and sexually abused.

Shirley Brown was described as a devoted mother; she had been studying Shakespeare's Othello before she had gone to bed.

A recent study of the effects of pornographic and violent videos claims to have found no absolute evidence to link such crimes with violence. However there can be little doubt that Richard Brown would still have a mother if this particular film had not been shown at this private party.

Another member of MoMAs is Mandy Everitt, whose son Richard was hacked to death by an Asian gang in Camden. The man who stabbed Richard was given a life sentence

Richard's mother Mandy said: "The Great Train Robbers were given 25 years, yet murderers are let out after eight to twelve years. Is money worth more than life?"

Shirley Brown, a devoted mother, was sexually assaulted and murdered.

The range of such videos and films currently available is very wide and they are very easily available. Some film makers seem to take delight in seeing just how far they can go.

One new film about necrophilia, Kissed, has just been passed for cinema release by the British Board of Film Classification. The film tells the story of a woman obsessed with death who breaks in to a mortuary to have sex with several of the corpses.

Films such as this and last year's 'shocker' Crash which depicts sexual arousal as a result of horrific car crashes simply add to the culture of violence which must be curbed as part of any realistic campaign to reduce the level of actual violence in our society.

appearance. The killer subsequently led police to the body of Scott.

Colin Boyd, the Solicitor General in the High Court in Aberdeen said he was concerned that the social work department, which was supervising Leisk while he was on licence, was aware that he was living directly opposite the place where Scott was last seen alive BUT DID NOT TELL THE POLICE!!

Scout Leader Pervert Gets 18 Years

December 12th 1997: David Stanley was given an 18 year prison sentence after Judge Michael Mott called him

"a predatory and aggressive paedophile".

He went on to say: "You sought a position with the Scouts to have access to these boys and gained the trust of the parents and the Scouts themselves. You cleverly chose boys who would not complain, some were as young as 10 years old".

Vicar Gets Three Years

December 12th 1997: David McIntosh, 52, pleaded guilty to seven charges of indecent assault involving boys aged 10 and 11 from 1988 to 1995.

He sexually assaulted young boys during "shower games" at holiday camps organised by a Christian youth group.

At Liverpool Crown Court he was jailed for three years - he could be out in less than two years.

Belgian Paedophiles Link: More Corruption

27th January 1998: Further suspicion of corruption within the Belgian police force has arisen as a result of an allegation that the two paedophiles, Marc Dutroux and Patrick Derochette, at the centre of the paedophile murders scandal, knew each other all along - something the Belgian police have always denied.

Dutroux is accused of killing four girls aged between 8 and 19 in August 1996 having kept them in specially made dungeons.

It is alleged that both men knew Michel Nihoul, a Belgian businessman alleged to have been heavily involved in a nationwide child sex ring.

choose to register.

Scott's mother, Patsy, 32, said that the best tribute to her son would be legislation to let parents know when a convicted paedophile was being housed in their community.

We venture to suggest that an even more fitting tribute would be not to let known paedophiles live in an open community.

Rapist Freed to kill

Victor Farrant

29th January 1998: Victor Farrant, 48, was given a 12 year sentence for rape in 1987. He was released in 1995 after just eight years. Within three months he murdered Glenda Hoskins and attempted to murder Ann Fidler.

Superintendent David Hanna of Hampshire Police said: Despite being widely considered a danger to women, there was no statutory authority for the probation service to monitor him". However police had become aware of his presence in Portsmouth but could not maintain a watch on him.

Katie Hoskins, the 17 year old daughter of Glenda Hoskins, said: "It is right that life should mean life. He is pure evil and should be locked up for ever so he can never do this again".

What a shame this was not done after the first rape, then Katie would still have a mother.

Glenda Hoskins

PROTECT OUR

Still On The Loose

10th November 1997: Stephen Leisk, 34, was jailed for life for the abduction and murder of nine year old Scott Simpson.

Leisk had a thirteen year previous history of convictions for sexual assault. The homosexual former soldier was already under the supervision of social workers for previous offences but was housed in a flat opposite a children's playpark in Aberdeen.

It was in this play park that he picked up Scott Simpson. A post mortem showed that Scott had probably fought for his life and attempted to remove the scarf which Leisk had tightened around his neck.

The killer was arrested on the fourth day after the killing when police received a phone call from one of the killer's relatives who was afraid he might be involved in what was then described as the boy's disappearance. The killer subsequently led police to the body of Scott.

Colin Boyd, the Solicitor General in the High Court in Aberdeen said he was concerned that the social work department, which was supervising Leisk while he was on licence, was aware that he was living directly opposite the place where Scott was last seen alive BUT DID NOT TELL THE POLICE!!

Scott Simpson, murdered by Stephen Leisk, already under supervision for previous offences.

The department had also failed to inform the police before the murder that Leisk, a known offender, was living next to the park.

This case completely illustrates the uselessness of the paedophile register even when known paedophiles choose to register.

Scott's mother, Patsy, 32, said that the best tribute to her son would be legislation to let parents know when a convicted paedophile was being housed in their community.

We venture to suggest that an even more fitting tribute would be not to let known paedophiles live in an open community.

Scout Leader Pervert Gets 18 Years

December 12th 1997: David Stanley was given an 18 year prison sentence after Judge Michael Mott called him

"a predatory and aggressive paedophile".

He went on to say: "You sought a position with the Scouts to have access to these boys and gained the trust of the parents and the Scouts themselves. You cleverly chose boys who would not complain, some were as young as 10 years old".

Vicar Gets Three Years

Rapist Freed to kill

Victor Farrant

29th January 1998: Victor Farrant

JACK STRAW MAN OF STRAW

JACK STRAW, the Home Secretary wrote to two campaigners against paedophiles at the beginning of December. The main concern of the campaigners was the release of convicted paedophiles back into the community where they might commit further crimes against children.

Jack Straw's letter is a masterpiece of waffle, appeasement, avoidance of the issues, half measures, ineffectiveness and political gobbledegook.

On the question of the sentencing of convicted paedophiles:

"On the matter of sentencing, within the broad statutory limits set by Parliament sentences in individual cases are a mater(sic) for the courts. Severe penalties are available for sexual offences. Life imprisonment is the maximum penalty for rape, attempted rape, buggery with a child under 16 and unlawful sexual intercourse with a girl under 13. Indecent assault carries a maximum penalty of ten years imprisonment and the Government has recently increased the maximum penalty for indecent conduct towards a young child from two to ten years."

The tone may be stern, but the facts are not. The reality is that for even the most serious offence of violent rape of a young child sentences of 8-14 years are possible and even life may mean release in 14 years.

Jack Straw admits that people convicted of such a crime WILL be released and WILL commit such crimes again:

"The Government also recently implemented provisions in the Crime (Sentences) Act 1997 for automatic life sentences for those convicted for a second time of certain serious violent or sexual offences including rape, attempted rape and unlawful sexual intercourse with a girl under 13."

Unbelievably he finishes this paragraph with the sentence:

"This will ensure that the public are protected from serious violent and sexual offenders." - Exactly

Finally Jack Straw comes on to the question of known paedophiles living in the community, on housing estates, near to children.

He says:

"You may be interested to know about the policy on disclosing information that the police will hold under the Sex Offenders Act 1997, which was implemented earlier this year. As you know, this Act imposes a requirement on those convicted of sex offences against children and other serious sex offences to notify the police of their name and address and any changes to these."

"The police have expressed reservations that to notify the public when a paedophile moves into the area would risk driving offenders underground. As a recent court ruling confirmed, information on convicted sex offenders should not be handed out gratuitously, but in a considered way in order to protect children and other vulnerable people against danger, based on an assessment of risk."

Fact 1. Two thirds of all known paedophiles have failed to register their names and addresses.

Fact 2. A register does nothing to prevent further crimes, it simply increases the chance of catching the appearance. The killer subsequently led police to the body of Scott.

Colin Boyd, the Solicitor General in the High Court in Aberdeen said he was concerned that the social work department, which was supervising Leisk while he was on licence, was aware that he was living directly opposite the place where Scott was last seen alive BUT DID NOT TELL THE POLICE!!

ter even when known paedophiles choose to register.

Scott's mother, Patsy, 32, said that the best tribute to her son would be legislation to let parents know when a convicted paedophile was being housed in their community.

We venture to suggest that an even more fitting tribute would be not to let known paedophiles live in an open community.

Scout Leader Pervert Gets 18 Years

December 12th 1997: David Stanley was given an 18 year prison sentence after Judge Michael Mott called him

"a predatory and aggressive paedophile".

He went on to say: "You sought a position with the Scouts to have access to these boys and gained the trust of the parents and the Scouts themselves. You cleverly chose boys who would not complain, some were as young as 10 years old".

Vicar Gets Three Years

December 12th 1997: David McIntosh, 52, pleaded guilty to seven charges of indecent assault involving boys aged 10 and 11 from 1988 to 1995.

He sexually assaulted young boys during "shower games" at holiday camps organised by a Christian youth group.

At Liverpool Crown Court he was jailed for three years - he could be out in less than two years.

Belgian Paedophiles Link: More Corruption

27th January 1998: Further suspicion of corruption within the Belgian police force has arisen as a result of an allegation that the two paedophiles, Marc Dutroux and Patrick Derochette, at the centre of the paedophile murders scandal, knew each other all along - something the Belgian police have always denied.

Dutroux is accused of killing four girls aged between 8 and 19 in August 1996 having kept them in specially made dungeons.

It is alleged that both men knew Michel Nihoul, a Belgian businessman alleged to have been heavily involved in a nationwide child sex ring.

Rapist Freed to kill

Victor Farrant

29th January 1998: Victor Farrant, 48, was given a 12 year sentence for rape in 1987. He was released in 1995 after just eight years. Within three months he murdered Glenda Hoskins and attempted to murder Ann Fidler.

Superintendent David Hanna of Hampshire Police said: Despite being widely considered a danger to women, there was no statutory authority for the probation service to monitor him". However police had become aware of his presence in Portsmouth but could not maintain a watch on him.

Katie Hoskins, the 17 year old daughter of Glenda Hoskins, said: "It is right that life should mean life. He is pure evil and should be locked up for ever so he can never do this again".

What a shame this was not done after the first rape, then Katie would still have a mother.

Glenda Hoskins

rape, buggery with a child under 16 and unlawful sexual intercourse with a girl under 13. Indecent assault carries a maximum penalty of ten years imprisonment and the Government has recently increased the maximum penalty for indecent conduct towards a young child from two to ten years."

The tone may be stern, but the facts are not. The reality is that for even the most serious offence of violent rape of a young child sentences of 8-14 years are possible and even life may mean release in 14 years.

Jack Straw admits that people convicted of such a crime WILL be released and WILL commit such crimes again:

"The Government also recently implemented provisions in the Crime (Sentences) Act 1997 for automatic life sentences for those convicted for a second time of certain serious violent or sexual offences including rape, attempted rape and unlawful sexual intercourse with a girl under 13."

Unbelievably he finishes this paragraph with the sentence:

"This will ensure that the public are protected from serious violent and sexual offenders." - Exactly the opposite of the truth.

He also completely ignores the fact that the majority of those individuals who commit the most serious sexual crimes, often have a history of minor sexual crimes. While, of course, it is not possible to lock up for life every individual who has committed even the most minor of such crimes, the fact that Jack Straw ignores this evidence, suggests that he is doing as little as possible while trying to appease the anger of the people - an old political trick, and one which is all too prevalent in 'New Labour'.

The letter goes on to make a tacit admission that crime is likely to increase. Jack Straw is very proud of the fact that "On 13 June the Prime Minister announced that the Government would make available an additional £1 million a year to the national organisation Victim Support, which provides practical help and emotional support, including counselling, to victims of crime across the country."

Now it is a well known fact that the majority (but not all) of the people involved in the new "counselling industry" in Britain are of a left wing political persuasion, but this is bound to be a coincidence.

However some victim support is a good and worthwhile project - but not as good and worthwhile as making sure that as few crimes as possible are committed.

question of known paedophiles living in the community, on housing estates, near to children.

He says:

"You may be interested to know about the policy on disclosing information that the police will hold under the Sex Offenders Act 1997, which was implemented earlier this year. As you know, this Act imposes a requirement on those convicted of sex offences against children and other serious sex offences to notify the police of their name and address and any changes to these."

"The police have expressed reservations that to notify the public when a paedophile moves into the area would risk driving offenders underground. As a recent court ruling confirmed, information on convicted sex offenders should not be handed out gratuitously, but in a considered way in order to protect children and other vulnerable people against danger, based on an assessment of risk."

Fact 1. Two thirds of all known paedophiles have failed to register their names and addresses.

Fact 2. A register does nothing to prevent further crimes, it simply increases the chance of catching the perpetrator. Only time will tell whether the chances of catching the offender are increased by very much.

Fact 3. Known paedophiles are still being housed on estates which have a high proportion of children. In one recent case (highlighted elsewhere in this feature) a known paedophile was housed in a flat overlooking a children's play area.

All in all Jack Straw's letter shows that the government is prepared to stand by and watch our children be abused, abducted, molested, raped and killed. Their only response is marginal increases in sentencing and a totally ineffective register. The man in charge is Jack Straw...truly a man of straw.

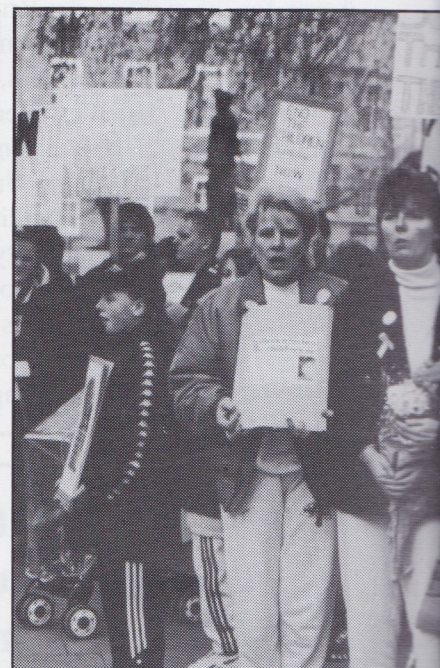

Campaigning Against Paedophiles

If you would like to get involved in one of the organisations that are campaigning to have paedophiles kept in prison, the National Democrat head office has a list of such groups.

If you phone the office you can be given the name and contact address of your nearest group.

R CHILDREN

We Demand: "Action Not W

The 'People Power' In

This is an interview between Flag editor, Ian Anderson and Cathy and Gill who organise the People Power anti-paedophile campaign, the interview was

paper 'The Yellow Advertiser' gave us a write up and people started getting in touch for copies of the petition forms.

Ian: So what happened with the petiknow what the Prime Minister himself thought about this. But he didn't reply but he passed it over to the Home Office. We then got a three page letter back from Jack Straw (see sound new, but they're not.

Gill: Basically we don't want to see this written down, what we want is action. We can all write things down on paper and say this is our inten-

to fend taxpay special
Gill: Wh
as soc

The 'People Power' In

This is an interview between Flag editor, Ian Anderson and Cathy and Gill who organise the People Power anti-paedophile campaign, the interview was conducted in Britannia House.

Ian: What prompted you to get 'People Power' off the ground?

Gill: It was the abduction and murder of Daniel Handley in 1995 and the trial of Morse and Tyler in May 1996. Initially it was a petition which we circulated around amongst family and friends and then the local paper 'The Yellow Advertiser' gave us a write up and people started getting in touch for copies of the petition forms.

Ian: So what happened with the petition?

Gill: We had over 300,000 signatures nationwide and on the 19th September 1997 we handed it in to Tony Blair.

Ian: What happened then?

Gill: We put a letter in with the petition to Tony Blair asking him to answer it himself, after all he was voted in by the people and we wanted to know what the Prime Minister himself thought about this. But he didn't reply but he passed it over to the Home Office. We then got a three page letter back from Jack Straw (see article on page 4) saying what proposals he was making and what he intended to do.

Cathy: What he really says is what he is doing, but they are only things that we have already got anyway but he has just re-worded it in another way which makes it seem as if he is doing something if you don't look into the letter. He makes things sound new, but they're not.

Gill: Basically we don't want to see this written down, what we want is action. We can all write things down on paper and say this is our intention.

Ian: And what do you want?

Gill: First of all we want tougher sentencing, the whole sentencing issue is a disaster, we feel that offenders, for their first offence, whether they are in possession of pornographic material or they are a 'flasher', they should get 10 years in prison and none of this good behaviour rubbish. When they are released they must go on a register, but we also want them electronically tagged so that officials can monitor their movements.

Life must mean life when it comes to child murderers and for second time offenders.

Also when we talk of notification of their addresses, we don't want big pictures of them appearing everywhere, we want liaison between the local authority and the police and neighbourhood watch. But anyone notified of his or her presence must also be told of the penalties for any 'vigilante-style' action.

If he/she is a Grade 'A' offender then the whole community must be told, children must be educated to stay away from such a person.

Ian: Do you think they should be there in the first place?

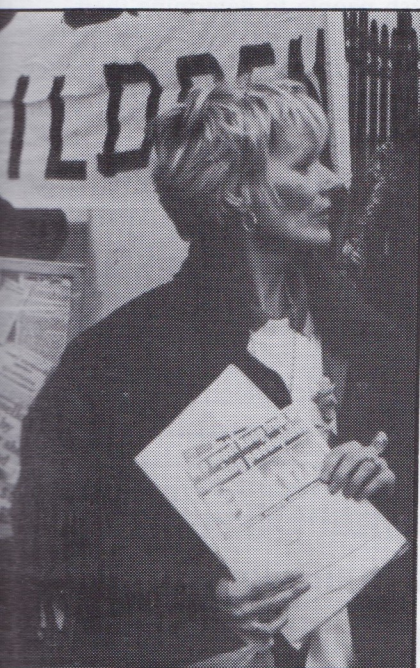

Gill: No, but we are not going to get that straight away so we are trying to be fair.

Cathy: A lot of people believe they should be stuck on an island and left

CHILDREN

: "Action Not Words"

ON SATURDAY 24th January campaigners from a variety of anti-paedophile groups met up in Whitehall to present a letter and file to Prime Minister, Tony Blair.

This was a follow-up to the presentation of a petition to Mr. Blair on 19th September 1997 which had been signed by over 300,000 people and which demanded positive action over paedophiles.

The organisers of "People Power" who arranged the petition and this follow-up were angry at the lack of action by the government over this matter.

About a hundred people met up in Whitehall and a petition was handed in by Cathy and Gill from People Power and by the mother of Rosie Palmer who now runs the Rosie Palmer Foundation.

Also present were a number of members of the Guardian Angels organisation including Curtis Sliwa, their leader, who had flown in from America. A small number of members of the National Democrats also gave support to this very worthwhile cause and demonstration.

Photographs:

Top Left: Young and older support the demonstration.

Top Right: The Organisers of the demonstration

Bottom Left: Through the gates that keep the people out of Downing Street (the ones Tony Blair said he would dismantle - another broken promise), the organisers go to hand in their petition to No. 10.

Bottom Right: The organisers chat to National Democrat Chairman, Ian Anderson, and agree to give him an interview for The Flag.

People Power' Interview

know what the Prime Minister himself thought about this. But he didn't reply but he passed it over to the Home Office. We then got a three page letter back from Jack Straw (see sound new, but they're not.

Gill: Basically we don't want to see this written down, what we want is action. We can all write things down on paper and say this is our inten-

to fend for themselves. Why should taxpayer's money be used to give special treatment to these people?

Gill: When these people are in prison as soon as they have offended they

she looked at the petition when we took it up to the House of Commons, she asked us to remove the word 'pervert' and the words 'electronic tagging', we refused and told her it was in from America. A small number of members of the National Democrats also gave support to this very worthwhile cause and demonstration.

Photographs:

Top Left: Young and older support the demonstration.

Top Right: The Organisers of the demonstration

Bottom Left: Through the gates that keep the people out of Downing Street (the ones Tony Blair said he would dismantle - another broken promise), the organisers go to hand in their petition to No. 10.

Bottom Right: The organisers chat to National Democrat Chairman, Ian Anderson, and agree to give him an interview for The Flag.

People Power' Interview

know what the Prime Minister himself thought about this. But he didn't reply but he passed it over to the Home Office. We then got a three page letter back from Jack Straw (see article on page 4) saying what proposals he was making and what he intended to do.

Cathy: What he really says is what he is doing, but they are only things that we have already got anyway but he has just re-worded it in another way which makes it seem as if he is doing something if you don't look into the letter. He makes things sound new, but they're not.

Gill: Basically we don't want to see this written down, what we want is action. We can all write things down on paper and say this is our intention.

Ian: And what do you want?

Gill: First of all we want tougher sentencing, the whole sentencing issue is a disaster, we feel that offenders, for their first offence, whether they are in possession of pornographic material or they are a 'flasher', they should get 10 years in prison and none of this good behaviour rubbish. When they are released they must go on a register, but we also want them electronically tagged so that officials can monitor their movements.

Life must mean life when it comes to child murderers and for second time offenders.

Also when we talk of notification of their addresses, we don't want big pictures of them appearing everywhere, we want liaison between the local authority and the police and neighbourhood watch. But anyone notified of his or her presence must also be told of the penalties for any 'vigilante-style' action.

If he/she is a Grade 'A' offender then the whole community must be told, children must be educated to stay away from such a person.

Ian: Do you think they should be there in the first place?

Gill: No, but we are not going to get that straight away so we are trying to be fair.

Cathy: A lot of people believe they should be stuck on an island and left to fend for themselves. Why should taxpayer's money be used to give special treatment to these people?

Gill: When these people are in prison as soon as they have offended they are mollycoddled, "Oh dear, what can we do for you", "Do you want counselling?" The prison authorities put them in a prison cell with the likes of their own, now the two men that killed Daniel Handley actually met in prison, they both had a string of convictions, for sexual offences going back years, they were both on a police register, they were allowed to have a sexual relationship with one another and they were allowed photographs of young children on the prison walls, they were allowed to have Mothercare catalogues sent to them, they were even allowed to sit together with their own little group with the manuscripts of the court so that they can all experience sexual arousal from what each of them did to these children.

When it comes to visitors, nine times out of ten it is their own kind that visit them so that if they were stalking a particular child before they were arrested, that information can then be passed to someone on the outside who can then carry on with it.

This type of visiting must be stopped.

Ian: Going back a bit, when you were doing the petition, did you get any help from anyone, politicians, councillors, etc.?

Gill: Margaret Hodge (local Labour M.P.) originally said she was all for what we were doing, but then when she looked at the petition when we took it up to the House of Commons, she asked us to remove the word 'pervert' and the words 'electronic tagging', we refused and told her it was what the people wanted. We were then told it was a possibility that we would be upsetting the Gay community by using the word 'pervert', so we wrote to a Gay organisation telling them that under no circumstances was this a vendetta against them and the word pervert simply referred to the people who abused children.

We bombarded our own local authority and M.P.'s but they wouldn't even recognise what we are doing.

Ian: has there been any action since handing in the petition? What about this register of paedophiles?

Gill: They had the register before, it has just been highlighted, the killers of Daniel Handley were on a police register and the police admitted in court that they didn't even bother to look on the register.

Ian: So, under your proposals, the killers of Daniel Handley wouldn't even have been out in the first place.

Cathy: They had offended once, been imprisoned and then offended again so under our proposals they would never have been let out and Daniel Handley would have been alive today.

Ian: What about the future?

Cathy: The campaign will go on, but we will have to do things to highlight our campaign and if that means embarrassing individuals then that is what we will have to do.

The FLAG

Editorial

Editor: Ian Anderson

Contributing Editors:

John Stephens, Martin Wingfield

Tina Wingfield

Staff Photographer: Michael Hipperson

P.O. Box 2269, London E6 3RF

Telephone: 0181-471 6872 Fax: 0181-471 6872

e mail: ian.anderson@netmatters.co.uk

www page: <http://www.natdems.org.uk>

Enoch Powell, PC, MBE.

"Well, let them all come. I don't care if I am alone. The cause of the British people and national independence is worth a contest. If we just walk away, they very stones of Westminster would cry out in despair"

If there is one cause for which Enoch Powell resolutely stood it was for the right of the British people to determine their own future. The National Democrats may not agree with all his policies nor all of his ideas, but his central belief and driving force is one shared by every single member of our party.

Enoch was a man who engendered strong emotions and for those people who love the United Kingdom he was ever a source of inspiration. His ability to combine all the erudition of an academic with the ability to echo the sentiments of the common man was unique amongst the politicians of his age.

It was this ability which was ever getting him into trouble. His 1968 speech on immigration was his most famous: "I seem to see the River Tiber foaming with much blood". Modern

The National Directorate to reduce subscription for married couples

At the first meeting of the National Democrat Directorate in 1998 a number of decisions were reached. These include a reduction in the annual membership fee for married couples. Previously they paid the full rate of £24 but this has now been reduced to £20 but is only applicable to married couples living together and in view of the current state of the Church in Britain it is emphasised that this is only applicable where one partner is male and one female. It was thought that this probably breaches at least one E.U. directive...which was another good reason for passing the resolution.

Following on from the success of the first party raffle which was drawn before Christmas it was decided that a second one would be held immediately with the draw taking place at the Annual Conference on Saturday 16th May.

Much of the time of the meeting was taken up with discussing details of the May local council elections and on a number of improvements in the general administration of the party.

MAKE-UP OF THE DIRECTORATE

The National Directorate is currently made up of a wide cross section of people both in terms of age and occupation. Directorate members include people whose main occupation is

- Merchant Seaman (retd),
- Printer,
- Accountant
- Farmer
- Ship's Master
- Publisher
- Retail Chain Manager
- International Trader
- Builder
- Manufacturing Executive
- Director of Retail Chain (2)

1998 a number of decisions were reached. These include a reduction in the annual membership fee for married couples. Previously they paid the full rate of £24 but this has now been reduced to £20 but is only applicable to married couples living together and in view of the current state of the Church in Britain it is emphasised that this is only applicable where one partner is male and one female. It was thought that this probably breaches at least one E.U. directive...which was another good reason for passing the resolution.

Following on from the success of the first party raffle which was drawn before Christmas it was decided that a second one would be held immediately with the draw taking place at the Annual Conference on Saturday 16th May.

Much of the time of the meeting was taken up with discussing details of the May local council elections and on a number of improvements in the general administration of the party.

MAKE-UP OF THE DIRECTORATE

The National Directorate is currently made up of a wide cross section of people both in terms of age and occupation. Directorate members include people whose main occupation is

- Merchant Seaman (ret'd),
- Printer,
- Accountant
- Farmer
- Ship's Master
- Publisher
- Retail Chain Manager
- International Trader
- Builder
- Manufacturing Executive
- Director of Retail Chain (2)
- Factory Worker
- Multinational Executive

This broad base to the Directorate gives it a breadth of knowledge and experience which is extremely useful. The age range and having both family men and women as well as single people makes it truly representative and keeps the party leadership well in touch with the views of the people.

PRINTING

For Anti-E.U. Groups At Discount Prices

5,000 Leaflets for £40.00

10,000 Leaflets for £65.00

Prices include design, artwork and printing and, if requested, advice on content
Also letterheadings, business cards, newsletters, etc.

This offer is only open to genuine organisations committed to withdrawing Britain from the E.U.

Phone: 0181-471 6872 for details

WEB WATCH

This is a new feature for The Flag and we will try to give the web site addresses of some of the more interesting websites for the increasing number of our readers who have access to the Internet. We also welcome suggestions for inclusion.

UK Politics: <http://www.ukpol.co.uk>
This is an excellent site although some parts of it are still under construction. It has links to many UK political parties plus election results, biographies of M.P.'s, the latest political news and links to newsgroups. The site is sponsored by Politico's the political bookshop whose own site contains details of its wide selection of books, videos, tapes, etc. Their web site is:

politicos@artillery-row.demon.co.uk

Most UK political parties have web sites now, some are very good (almost as good as that of the National Democrats) others are very basic. With each issue of The Flag we will give you some idea of the content and presentation of a selection of these.

<http://www.digiweb.com/igeldard/LA/>

The first one we have chosen is that of the Libertarian Alliance. Their site is extremely basic but still quite useful. It consists largely of a listing of their various books, pam-

Enoch Powell, PC, MBE. 1912-1998

"Well, let them all come. I don't care if I am alone. The cause of the British people and national independence is worth a contest. If we just walk away, they very stones of Westminster would cry out in despair"

If there is one cause for which Enoch Powell resolutely stood it was for the right of the British people to determine their own future. The National Democrats may not agree with all his policies nor all of his ideas, but his central belief and driving force is one shared by every single member of our party.

Enoch was a man who engendered strong emotions and for those people who love the United Kingdom he was ever a source of inspiration. His ability to combine all the erudition of an academic with the ability to echo the sentiments of the common man was unique amongst the politicians of his age.

It was this ability which was ever getting him into trouble. His 1968 speech on immigration was his most famous: "I seem to see the River Tiber foaming with much blood". Modern television and newspaper reporters claim that this was an outrageous speech that stirred up racial hatred, yet Enoch would never have dreamt of doing any such thing - it was a prophetic warning, one that was given 13 years before the race riots that devastated central Brixton, Toxteth and St. Pauls.

No one would surely claim that all danger from this source is past.

Enoch was also an Ulster M.P. and fought for the continued unity of the United Kingdom and its independence from the new European Super State.

A great man who will continue to inspire patriotic men and women long after his death.

The National Directorate to reduce subscription for married couples

At the first meeting of the National Democrat Directorate in 1998 a number of decisions were reached. These include a reduction in the annual membership fee for married couples. Previously they paid the full rate of £24 but this has now been reduced to £20 but is only applicable to married couples living together and in view of the current state of the Church in Britain it is emphasised that this is only applicable where one partner is male and one female. It was thought that this probably breaches at least one E.U. directive...which was another good reason for passing the resolution.

Following on from the success of the first party raffle which was drawn before Christmas it was decided that a second one would be held immediately with the draw taking place at the Annual Conference on Saturday 16th May.

Much of the time of the meeting was taken up with discussing details of the May local council elections and on a number of improvements in the general administration of the party.

MAKE-UP OF THE DIRECTORATE

The National Directorate is currently made up of a wide cross section of people both in terms of age and occupation. Directorate members include people whose main occupation is

Merchant Seaman (ret'd),
Printer,
Accountant
Farmer
Ship's Master
Publisher
Retail Chain Manager
International Trader
Builder
Manufacturing Executive
Director of Retail Chain (2)

National Democrat Grand Spring Draw 1st prize: £250.00

2nd prize £50.00

3rd Prize: Radio Alarm Clock

4th Prize: AM/FM Radio

Plus several other prizes

To be drawn on Saturday 16th May 1998

Tickets 5 for £1.00

Please send me draw tickets at 5 for £1.00 (inc. postage) (cheques to be made payable to the National Democrats.

Name:.....

Address:.....

Send to: The National Democrats, P.O. Box 2269, London E6 3RF.

'Half A Million' Campaign Under Way

THE NATIONAL DEMOCRAT leafletting campaign is well and truly under way. By 31st January nearly 40,000 leaflets had gone out, keeping the party more or less on time

Number of Pieces of Literature distributed to 31st January

North West 2,000

1998 a number of decisions were reached. These include a reduction in the annual membership fee for married couples. Previously they paid the full rate of £24 but this has now been reduced to £20 but is only applicable to married couples living together and in view of the current state of the Church in Britain it is emphasised that this is only applicable where one partner is male and one female. It was thought that this probably breaches at least one E.U. directive...which was another good reason for passing the resolution.

Following on from the success of the first party raffle which was drawn before Christmas it was decided that a second one would be held immediately with the draw taking place at the Annual Conference on Saturday 16th May.

Much of the time of the meeting was taken up with discussing details of the May local council elections and on a number of improvements in the general administration of the party.

MAKE-UP OF THE DIRECTORATE

The National Directorate is currently made up of a wide cross section of people both in terms of age and occupation. Directorate members include people whose main occupation is

Merchant Seaman (retd), Printer,
Accountant
Farmer
Ship's Master
Publisher
Retail Chain Manager
International Trader
Builder
Manufacturing Executive
Director of Retail Chain (2)
Factory Worker
Multinational Executive

This broad base to the Directorate gives it a breadth of knowledge and experience which is extremely useful. The age range and having both family men and women as well as single people makes it truly representative and keeps the party leadership well in touch with the views of the people.

2nd prize £50.00
3rd Prize: Radio Alarm Clock
4th Prize: AM/FM Radio
Plus several other prizes

To be drawn on Saturday 16th May 1998
Tickets 5 for £1.00

Please send me draw tickets at 5 for £1.00 (inc. postage) (cheques to be made payable to the National Democrats.

Name:.....

Address:.....

Send to: The National Democrats, P.O. Box 2269, London E6 3RF.

'Half A Million' Campaign Under Way

THE NATIONAL DEMOCRAT leafletting campaign is well and truly under way. By 31st January nearly 40,000 leaflets had gone out, keeping the party more or less on time for its target of half a million leaflets in 1998.

In the West Midlands the campaign was given a real boost with 11,000 leaflets being despatched, while arch rivals in the East Midlands just pipped them with 12,000.

These are mainly 'warm up' leaflets for the local elections. However a large and growing part of leafletting involves use of the new "anti-single currency" leaflets, and orders for these are now coming in quickly and will probably make up the bulk of the February total.

Particularly pleasing has been the number of individuals who have been ordering these leaflets to distribute themselves.

Number of Pieces of Literature distributed to 31st January

North West	2,000
West Mids	11,000
South East	2,000
Head Office	4,500
Yorkshire	6,000
East Mids	12,000
South West	2,000
TOTAL	39,500

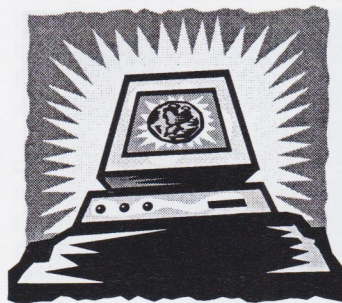

There seems every likelihood that this level of distribution will continue, especially later in Spring when the local elections start looming.

The next leaflet to be added to the range currently held by head office will be an anti-paedophile leaflet; this is currently being prepared and will be available during February.

WEB WATCH

This is a new feature for The Flag and we will try to give the web site addresses of some of the more interesting websites for the increasing number of our readers who have access to the Internet. We also welcome suggestions for inclusion.

UK Politics: <http://www.ukpol.co.uk>
This is an excellent site although some parts of it are still under construction. It has links to many UK political parties plus election results, biographies of M.P.'s, the latest political news and links to newsgroups. The site is sponsored by Politico's the political bookshop whose own site contains details of its wide selection of books, videos, tapes, etc. Their web site is:

politicos@artillery-row.demon.co.uk

Most UK political parties have web sites now, some are very good (almost as good as that of the National Democrats) others are very basic. With each issue of The Flag we will give you some idea of the content and presentation of a selection of these.
<http://www.digiweb.com/igeldard/LA/>

The first one we have chosen is that of the Libertarian Alliance. Their site is extremely basic but still quite useful. It consists largely of a listing of their various books, pamphlets, etc. The topics covered range from pamphlets explaining "the legitimacy of prostitution" to "free market economics". If you want an alternative, but perhaps occasionally eccentric view, on a current political issue then this is the site for you.

When perusing this site it was quite interesting to notice that some of the authors of the publications that are advertised also appear on the subscribers list to The Flag and it must be admitted that some of their ideas do bear some similarity with the views of the National Democrats, but in a few areas there are distinct differences - however their views are stimulating and do, at least, make you think. After all anything is better than the stodge that is drip-fed by the main political parties.

Overall not well presented but quite interesting and occasionally quite useful.

Other sites:-

Campaign for an Independent Britain:

<http://ourworld.compuserve.com/homepages/cibhq/cibhp.htm>

BBC World Service:

<http://www.bbc.co.uk/worldservice/French/FN>:

<http://www.front-nat.fr/fnj/fnj3.htm>

Dutch anti-EU group:

<http://www.snore.org/different-europe>

Letters To The Editor

Send To: The Editor,
The Flag, P.O. Box 2269,
London E6 3RF

Help From Iceland!

Sir,
I hope your readers will support the 'Iceland' frozen food store which is doing its bit to help British farmers in their time of crisis.

The store has cancelled a £1 million order for fresh lamb from New Zealand as part of a new 'Buy British' policy.

It is this sort of move by stores in Britain that should be highly publicised so that it puts pressure on other stores to follow suit.

CLIVE JACKSON, St Austell, Cornwall

Food In Hospital

Sir,
A recent report called "Hungry in Hospital", issued by the Association of Community Health Councils for England and Wales, outlined the fall in catering standards in Britain's hospitals. I witnessed this first hand in a recent stay in hospital.

Gone are the catering staff and kitchens. Now chilled, cooked meals are brought in from outside caterers and reheated in microwave ovens. They are unsatisfying and tasteless.

I think doing away with kitchens and cooks in hospital is a bad move. Food is vital in aiding recovery after treatment but the mass produced 'airline' type food I sampled can do no good at all.

Let's get back to good old-fashioned home cooking from the hospital kitchen
Mrs EDITH BENTALL, Dagenham, Essex

Time For Reasoned Debate

Sir,
What an excellent letter from Mrs. E. Sheringham (The Flag No. 100) and I fully agree that the time is right for a calm, rational and reasoned debate on the issue of immigration.

We have had forty years of immigration into our tiny island from all parts of the world and I believe it is time to call it a day. The Third World immigrants from Kenya, Uganda, India, Pakistan and the West Indies who settled in the sixties and seventies now have their families here. The argument used for further immigration in the eighties that families were divided is not the case anymore.

Britain has proved what a hospitable country she is and the newcomers have been generally accepted by the host population. Despite the mini-boom we are now experiencing, there are some harsh decisions to be taken with regard to the country's social security bill and I'm worried that cuts in benefits to too many might provoke those being penalised to start looking around for scapegoats. The old adage "Last In First Out" might be directed against the more recent settlers on our shores undoing the goodwill that exists between the communities.

I am so glad that The Flag allows this sort of open debate in its pages. When I asked a question on immigration at a UKIP meeting just before the general election, those on the top table were quite rude and refused to answer or acknowledge my question.

MRS DOREEN WATSON, Doncaster

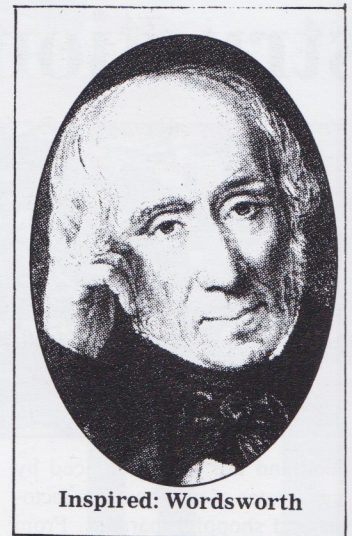

Stepping Back In Time

Sir,
Visitors to the Lake District this summer are recommended to put Dove Cottage at Grasmere, the home of the poet William Wordsworth, high on their itinerary.

The garden has been painstakingly restored to how it was when William and Dorothy were in residence between 1799 and 1808. Honeysuckle, wild roses, cornflowers, corn marigolds, hawkweed, lemon thyme and sainfoin proliferate but gone are the more recent introductions of rhododendrons and daffodils.

Custodian of Dove Cottage, George Kirkby, faced a difficult task in returning what Dorothy Wordsworth described as "our little domestic slip of a mountain" back to its former glory because of the huge environmental changes in the area.

"The problem was that the Lake District has totally changed. We haven't got any ploughed fields in the valley nowadays when in Wordsworth's time cornfields were the main feature. Also plants that were commonplace in the North-West in the 19th century can no longer be found here" said Mr. Kirkby, who used letters and journals of the time as his garden guide.

Inspired: Wordsworth

PAUL REYNOLDS, Whitby Bay

The Consequences of Immigration

Sir,
I received a copy of The Flag through the post recently and found it most interesting. What finally persuaded me to send in my order was the letter by Mrs. Sheringham on immigration.

Living in Sussex we are now seeing the results of continued immigration over the past thirty years. My Council has been told by the government that it must build thousands of new houses, many on green belt land with the consequent destruction of some truly beautiful areas. The roads in our county have become progressively more crowded over the past thirty years and the quality of life for my grandchildren is, in my opinion, much worse than it was for my children who grew up in the fifties and early sixties.

In the past the only people who spoke about immigration were unpleasant and abusive, and I have to say that I do not think Enoch Powell's infamous "Rivers of Blood" speech helped in this regard.

However immigration should be discussed without resorting to such emotive language and I was pleased to see that I was not alone in thinking this. My subscription order is enclosed
Mrs. Warner, Sussex

Christianity being pushed out of schools....by Christians

Sir,
It seems that the Church's guilt complex has become so dominant that they are almost apologising for being Christians these days. I read with disgust that a government-approved review has decided that daily prayers should be scrapped. This review consulted the churches and found that the Methodists backed this change, the Church of England refused to say and only the Roman Catholics supported the retention of a daily act of Christian

VANGUARD

ISSUE No. 52 OUT NOW!!

Contents Include:

British Army - Going Barmy?

European Free Trade Laws

Book review: Euroslavia

Cause UK Job Losses

The Internet - Gateway to the New Renaissance

Pauline Hanson - Putting Australia First

£2.00 including postage

NEW Cassette Tape NO To The E.U.

Why the
National Democrats
oppose Britain's membership of the European Union
By Ian Anderson
£2.50 inc. post
Freedom Books

FREE

TOP QUALITY TIES

TOP QUALITY TIES BOTH WITH DA
BLUE BACKGROUND

1. Union Jack Tie: Diagonal stripes of sn union jack flags.....
2. Britannia Tie: has motif of Britannia a red and white diagonal stripes.....

SMALL METAL BAD

tal.

Gone are the catering staff and kitchens. Now chilled, cooked meals are brought in from outside caterers and reheated in microwave ovens. They are unsatisfying and tasteless.

I think doing away with kitchens and cooks in hospital is a bad move. Food is vital in aiding recovery after treatment but the mass produced 'airline' type food I sampled can do no good at all.

Let's get back to good old-fashioned home cooking from the hospital kitchen
Mrs EDITH BENTALL, Dagenham, Essex

many might provoke those being penalised to start looking around for scapegoats. the old adage "Last In First Out" might be directed against the more recent settlers on our shores undoing the goodwill that exists between the communities.

I am so glad that The Flag allows this sort of open debate in its pages. When I asked a question on immigration at a UKIP meeting just before the general election, those on the top table were quite rude and refused to answer or acknowledge my question.

MRS DOREEN WATSON, Doncaster

Mrs. Sheringham on immigration.

Living in Sussex we are now seeing the results of continued immigration over the past thirty years. My Council has been told by the government that it must build thousands of new houses, many on green belt land with the consequent destruction of some truly beautiful areas. The roads in our county have become progressively more crowded over the past thirty years and the quality of life for my grandchildren is, in my opinion, much worse than it was for my children who grew up in the fifties and early sixties.

In the past the only people who spoke about immigration were unpleasant and abusive, and I have to say that I do not think Enoch Powell's infamous "Rivers of Blood" speech helped in this regard.

ing pushed out of schools....by Christians

Sir,

It seems that the Church's guilt complex has become so dominant that they are almost apologising for being Christians these days. I read with disgust that a government-approved review has decided that daily prayers should be scrapped. This review consulted the churches and found that the Methodists backed this change, the Church of England refused to say and only the Roman Catholics supported the retention of a daily act of Christian

VANGUARD

ISSUE No. 52 OUT NOW!!

Contents Include:

British Army - Going Barmy?

European Free Trade Laws

Book review: Euroslavia

Cause UK Job Losses

The Internet - Gateway to the New Renaissance

Pauline Hanson - Putting Australia First

£2.00 including postage

From Vanguard Publications

P.O. Box 2269, London E6 3RF

BACK ISSUES OF THE FLAG AND VANGUARD

THE FLAG

- No. 87 Rioters Go Free
- No. 88. A Sick Society
- No. 89. Invasion!
- No. 90. Stop The Spanish Fishing Armada
- No. 91. Abduction-Torture-Rape: Out In Three Years
- No. 92. Election Progress
- No. 93. National Democrats Getting Results
- No. 94. Britain Is Too Overcrowded
- No. 95. British Pensioners Deserve A new Deal
- No. 96. They're Trying To destroy The U.K.
- No. 97. Crime Epidemic
- No. 98. Blair Silent on Animal Slaughter
- No. 99 Do Nothing Government
- No. 100 The National Democrats - The Future

£1.00 each including postage, or all 14 for £10, from Flag Newspapers, P.O. Box 2269, London E6 3RF.

VANGUARD

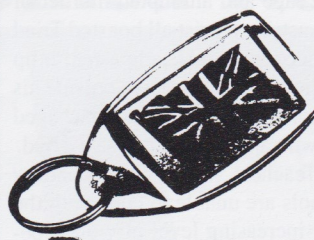

- No. 46. The Demise of British Aviation
- No. 47. Britannia
- No. 48. Immigration Set To Destroy Our Countryside
- No. 49. They fought to keep Ulster British
- No. 50. William Wordsworth
- No. 51. Bribe with your own money?

£2.00 each including postage from Vanguard Publications, P.O. Box 2269, London E6 3RF.

NEW Cassette Tape NO To The E.U.

Why the
National Democrats
oppose Britain's membership
of the European Union
By Ian Anderson
£2.50 inc. post
Freedom Books
P.O. Box 2269,
London E6 3RF

National Democrat Key Fobs

Union Jack one side
National Democrat
name and address on reverse

£1.00 inc post
Freedom Books
P.O. Box 2269,
London E6 3RF

Key Fobs made to your order with your design
40p each
(min order 10)
Phone for details

FREE

TOP QUALITY TIES

TOP QUALITY TIES BOTH WITH DA
BLUE BACKGROUND

1. Union Jack Tie: Diagonal stripes of s
union jack flags.....
2. Britannia Tie: has motif of Britannia a red and white diagonal stripes.....

SMALL METAL BADGES

1. Union Jack badge.....
2. England St George's Flag badge.....
3. National Democrat badge (for membe

1. THE
2. WA
3. MU
4. TRA
5. KEI
6. ALI
7. MU

P.O. Box

Stepping Back In Time

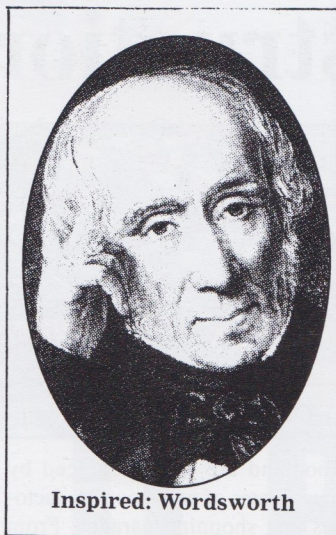

Sir,

Visitors to the Lake District this summer are recommended to put Dove Cottage at Grasmere, the home of the poet William Wordsworth, high on their itinerary.

The garden has been painstakingly restored to how it was when William and Dorothy were in residence between 1799 and 1808. Honeysuckle, wild roses, cornflowers, corn marigolds, hawkweed, lemon thyme and sainfoin proliferate but gone are the more recent introductions of rhododendrons and daffodils.

Custodian of Dove Cottage, George Kirkby, faced a difficult task in returning what Dorothy Wordsworth described as "our little domestic slip of a mountain" back to its former glory because of the huge environmental changes in the area.

"The problem was that the Lake District has totally changed. We haven't got any ploughed fields in the valley nowadays when in Wordsworth's time cornfields were the main feature. Also plants that were commonplace in the North-West in the 19th century can no longer be found here" said Mr. Kirkby, who used letters and journals of the time as his garden guide.

Inspired: Wordsworth

PAUL REYNOLDS, Whitby Bay

The Consequences of Immigration

Sir,

I received a copy of The Flag through the post recently and found it most interesting. What finally persuaded me to send in my order was the letter by Mrs. Sheringham on immigration.

Living in Sussex we are now seeing the results of continued immigration over the past thirty years. My Council has been told by the government that it must build thousands of new houses, many on green belt land with the consequent destruction of some truly beautiful areas. The roads in our county have become progressively more crowded over the past thirty years and the quality of life for my grandchildren is, in my opinion, much worse than it was for my children who grew up in the fifties and early sixties.

In the past the only people who spoke about immigration were unpleasant and abusive, and I have to say that I do not think Enoch Powell's infamous "Rivers of Blood" speech helped in this regard.

Christianity being pushed out of schools....by Christians

Sir,

It seems that the Church's guilt complex has become so dominant that they are almost apologising for being Christians these days. I read with disgust that a government-approved review has decided that daily prayers should be scrapped. This review consulted the churches and found that the Methodists backed this change, the Church of England refused to say and only the Roman Catholics supported the retention of a daily act of Christian worship.

With no religious foundation to the question of morality our children are being launched into the world with out the necessary framework within which they can determine what is right and what is wrong. The religious education in schools today is more like the studying of primitive tribes. It looks in from the outside, rather than encouraging actual Christian participation.

Our church leaders are a disgrace. The heirs of Thomas More and Thomas A'Beckett provide no leadership and no moral backbone. Their cringing and Uriah Heep attitude is a blot on our Church. Is it any wonder that those of us who believe in Christ and try to live our life by his teachings are turning away from the established Church which is rapidly ceasing to be Christian at all.

MRS. V. LONG, London

It reaches the parts.....

Sir,

Following recent reports that Saddam Hussein has stockpiled a nerve gas called Agent 15, which is soluble in water and induces in the unfortunate victim a raised temperature, weakness, dizziness, blurred vision, hallucinations, confusion and poor co-ordination and stupor, I would like to ask one question.

Has anybody checked the water supply to the Government's Cabinet Office lately?

M. HIPPERSON, London

We're here to 'itc' it

Sir,

On 9th January I watched a "holiday" programme on Channel 5 at 1.30pm. A lot of this programme concentrated on homosexuals on holiday. It showed naked men fondling each other and others trying to get off with each other. I wrote to the ITC complaining that this programme should not have been shown before 9.00pm. I enclose a copy of the letter. Sometimes I think that having a television is like having an open sewer running through the living room.

N. LISZEWSKI, Derby

THE REPLY FROM I.T.C.:

We..... are unable to share your view that it was inappropriately scheduled. Under the provisions of the ITC Programme Code, among elements we would regard as unsuitable before 9pm would be the most offensive forms of bad language, violence and the explicit portrayal of sexual behaviour. The viewer was exposed to none of these in this programme, but rather the portrayal of two lifestyles of minority appeal.....the second a rather more restrained homosexual man. To disallow the on-screen portrayal of behaviour of lifestyles, which, even though they may invite the disapproval of many people, are entirely lawful would be to drastically and unreasonably restrict the range and subject matter that television could tackle. There was, admittedly, some elements of nudity in this programme but they were no more than one would expect in a programme about a Mediterranean beach resort and they were not associated with the portrayal of sexual activity.

RUBBER STAMPS FOR ENGLISH PATRIOTS

FOR USE ON ENVELOPES, CHEQUES, LETTERS, ETC

Your chance to help promote our national identity send S.A.E to:-

24 DESIGNS
Plus free address list of useful English addresses

AVENUE R/S Co.
P.O. BOX 177
BICESTER D.O.
OXON. OX6 8WU

NEW Cassette Tape NO To The E.U.

Why the
National Democrats
oppose Britain's membership of the European Union

By Ian Anderson
£2.50 inc. post
Freedom Books

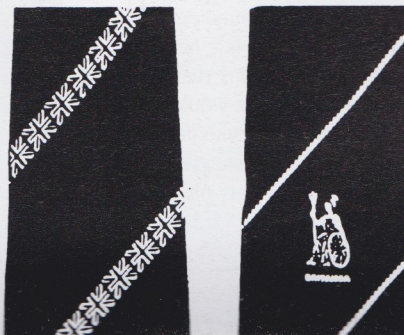

FREEDOM BOOKS

TOP QUALITY TIES

TOP QUALITY TIES BOTH WITH DARK BLUE BACKGROUND

1. Union Jack Tie: Diagonal stripes of small union jack flags.....£9.95
2. Britannia Tie: has motif of Britannia and narrow red and white diagonal stripes.....£9.95

SMALL METAL BADGES

to send in my order was the letter by Mrs. Sheringham on immigration.

Living in Sussex we are now seeing the results of continued immigration over the past thirty years. My Council has been told by the government that it must build thousands of new houses, many on green belt land with the consequent destruction of some truly beautiful areas. The roads in our county have become progressively more crowded over the past thirty years and the quality of life for my grandchildren is, in my opinion, much worse than it was for my children who grew up in the fifties and early sixties.

In the past the only people who spoke about immigration were unpleasant and abusive, and I have to say that I do not think Enoch Powell's infamous "Rivers of Blood" speech helped in this regard.

ing pushed out of schools....by Christians

Sir,

It seems that the Church's guilt complex has become so dominant that they are almost apologising for being Christians these days. I read with disgust that a government-approved review has decided that daily prayers should be scrapped. This review consulted the churches and found that the Methodists backed this change, the Church of England refused to say and only the Roman Catholics supported the retention of a daily act of Christian

Has anybody checked the water supply to the Government's Cabinet Office lately?

M. HIPPERSON, London

one would expect in a programme about a Mediterranean beach resort and they were not associated with the portrayal of sexual activity.

RUBBER STAMPS FOR ENGLISH PATRIOTS

FOR USE ON ENVELOPES, CHEQUES, LETTERS, ETC

Your chance to help promote our national identity

24 DESIGNS

Plus free address list of useful English addresses

send S.A.E to:-

AVENUE R/S Co.

P.O. BOX 177

BICESTER D.O.

OXON. OX6 8WU

NEW Cassette Tape NO To The E.U.

Why the National Democrats oppose Britain's membership of the European Union

By Ian Anderson

£2.50 inc. post
Freedom Books
P.O. Box 2269,
London E6 3RF

FREEDOM BOOKS

TOP QUALITY TIES

TOP QUALITY TIES BOTH WITH DARK
BLUE BACKGROUND

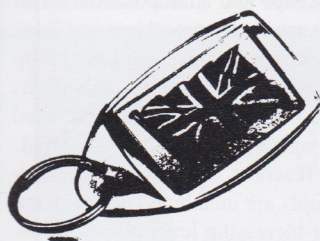

1. Union Jack Tie: Diagonal stripes of small union jack flags.....£9.95
2. Britannia Tie: has motif of Britannia and narrow red and white diagonal stripes.....£9.95

SMALL METAL BADGES

1. Union Jack badge.....£1.75
2. England St George's Flag badge.....£1.75
3. National Democrat badge (for members only). £2.50

National Democrat Key Fobs

Union Jack one side
National Democrat
name and address on reverse

£1.00 inc post
Freedom Books
P.O. Box 2269,
London E6 3RF

Key Fobs made to your order with your design
40p each
(min order 10)
Phone for details

The National Democrat Manifesto

£2.95 including postage

CASSETTE TAPES

1. THE SCOTTISH REGIMENTS.....£4.99
2. WARTIME MEMORIES (Songs of WW2).....£4.99
3. MUSIC OF THE STREETS (traditional).....£6.99
4. TRADITIONAL SONGS OF SCOTLAND£6.99
5. KEEP THE HOME FIRES BURNING
(songs of WW1).....£6.99
6. ALL ROUND ENGLAND & BACK AGAIN
(traditional folk songs).....£6.99
7. MUSIC FROM THE TIME OF THE SPANISH
ARMADA.....£6.99

ALL PRICES INCLUDE POSTAGE & PACKING

P.O. Box 2269, London E6 3RF

London Tourist Board Drive To Attract Homosexuals

The London Tourist Board, financed by the government has launched an advertising campaign to attract homosexuals from America to visit London. A total of 50,000 mail shots are being sent to homosexuals living in New York, San Francisco and Washington.

The campaign is being supported by the Secretary of State for Culture, Chris Smith.. who, surprise, surprise...is homosexual.

Martin Bell: not quite so white?

Martin Bell, the Independent M.P. for Tatton received legal advice during his general election campaign. The cost of the advice was £9,400 but he didn't pay it because the Labour and Liberal Democrat parties paid it.

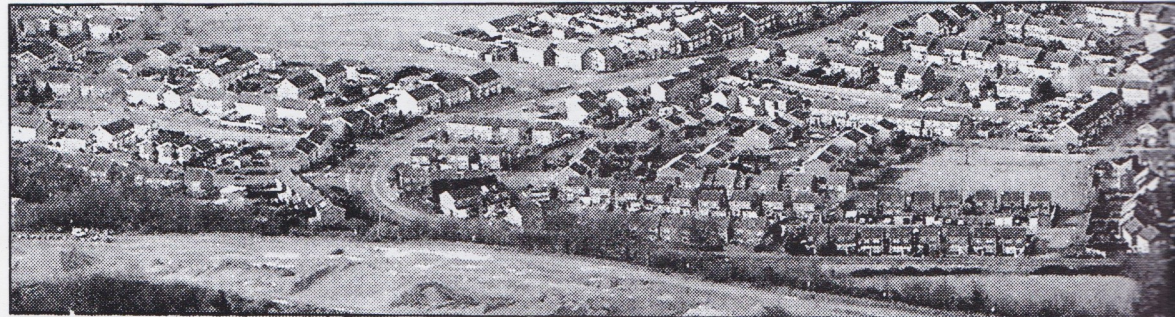

Now Martin Bell, 8 months later, has repaid the money to the two parties and seems to think that this closes the matter.

However he obviously received the advice, he presumably knew it cost money to get advice from lawyers, so where did he think the money came from?

Now the details have hit the newspapers and he has decided to repay it. Is he really claiming that he never knew that someone had paid the bill and is he really claiming that he has only just found out about it. Presumably he is - because otherwise his actions reek of hypocrisy or stupidity: it would mean that he knew that someone paid the bill and that he intended to keep quiet about it and only when it became public knowledge did he repay it.

Not enough Brit-

The Destruction of West S

THE COASTAL TOWNS and villages of West Sussex were amongst the most picturesque that Britain had to offer in the mid-1960's. All were surrounded by fields and woodlands, with the shops just a stone's throw from beaches boarded by pine trees.

In 1967 I took part in a school outing on bicycles from Shoreham to Littlehampton. It was a glorious day's ride through Lancing, Worthing, Goring, Ferring, East Preston and Rustington. As we passed in and out of the town boundaries we were met by superb countryside and the freshest air imaginable and, although there was other traffic on the road, no exhaust fumes could compete with the power of the country smells of rural England.

Thirty years on things are much changed. From Shoreham to Littlehampton now is just one great urban sprawl. The green fields and woodland are gone, replaced by huge estates of new housing, factories and shopping parades. From Bognor Regis in the West to Brighton in the East, the Sussex coastal towns are separate in name only. One town runs into another with the 'out of town' factory sites the only barrier between each conurbation. The roads that run through this urban jungle are congested with traffic belching out such suffocating fumes that if there was a cycle outing from Shoreham to Littlehampton today, those taking part would probably need hospital treatment afterwards.

What a change in thirty years! And if you think things are bad now, then you had better sit down, because they are going to get much worse.

Deputy Prime Minister, John Prescott, has decreed that West Sussex County Council must build

50,700 new homes in the next 12 years. It's part of a larger Government plan that will see 4.4 million new houses built in the British countryside by 2016.

South Eastern England is one of the most densely populated areas in Europe. More houses mean more roads to accommodate more cars. What countryside is left will soon disappear under concrete and the quality of life of those families squashed together will suffer accordingly.

West Sussex, to meet Government housing plans, will have to build the equivalent of three new towns within the county's green belt. Three new towns accommodating up to 30,000 new residents each with all the strains and stresses such an influx will put local services under.

If more homes are needed, then they should be built in areas that re-

Violence Spreads Across our S

SECONDARY SCHOOLS in Britain's urban areas are becoming increasingly more dangerous environments for both teachers and pupils. The emergence of an American style, gang-driven sub-culture within city schools has left teachers ever-fearful of physical attack and has fundamentally undermined the confidence of parents in the ability of the state education system to secure the safety of their children while in its care.

Patricia Jaffe, head teacher of Kidbrooke School in London, recently summed up the prevailing culture within urban schools: "There is an atmosphere of fear which is really palpable around the children, who are young and extremely vulnerable....in twenty years of teaching I have never seen this kind of fear".

Mrs Jaffe's comments were made during a pre-trial hearing in the case of Nathan Brown, a fifteen year old boy later convicted for the brutal murder of Carl Rickard, only fourteen years old. Brown claimed to be a member of the '14K Triad gang' and led a section known as the 'Golden Snakes' at his school, Thomas Tallis School, in South East London. He and other members of the gang had planned in detail the attack on their victim which took place just outside the gates of Kidbrooke School. Carl Rickard was viciously punched and kicked by the eight strong gang until their 'leader', Nathan Brown, drew out a 17-inch machete and brought it down heavily on the boy's skull. Carl died two weeks later of severe brain injury.

Martin Bell, the Independent M.P. for Tatton received legal advice during his general election campaign. The cost of the advice was £9,400 but he didn't pay it because the Labour and Liberal Democrat parties paid it.

Now Martin Bell, 8 months later, has repaid the money to the two parties and seems to think that this closes the matter.

However he obviously received the advice, he presumably knew it cost money to get advice from lawyers, so where did he think the money came from?

Now the details have hit the newspapers and he has decided to repay it. Is he really claiming that he never knew that someone had paid the bill and is he really claiming that he has only just found out about it. Presumably he is - because otherwise his actions reek of hypocrisy or stupidity: it would mean that he knew that someone paid the bill and that he intended to keep quiet about it and only when it became public knowledge did he repay it.

Not enough British engineers for Land Rover

Land Rover is one of Britain's most successful vehicle manufacturers (even if it is temporarily owned by the Germans). Yet for the first time in its history it is having to advertise abroad for new engineers because there aren't enough young engineers coming out of Britain's educational system.

Land Rover's new vehicle, the Freelander, has just won the European Car of the Year title and has advertised for 150 engineers - only 20 people applied.

The Institution of British Engineers laid the blame squarely on the education system, which, it said, had turned engineering into an unfashionable career.

John Fenton, President of the I.B.E. said: "The blame for the shortage of engineers lies at the door of the education system because it has pushed school leavers in the direction of taking a degree instead of the more traditional route (an engineering apprenticeship).

"There is a high level of graduate engineers who are unattractive to companies because, although they have the technical knowledge, they can't file a piece of metal or light a blow-torch".

Thirty years on things are much changed. From Shoreham to Littlehampton now is just one great urban sprawl. The green fields and they are going to get much worse. Deputy Prime Minister, John Prescott, has decreed that West Sussex County Council must build strains and stresses such an influx will put local services under. If more homes are needed, then they should be built in areas that re-

Violence Spreads Across our S

SECONDARY SCHOOLS in Britain's urban areas are becoming increasingly more dangerous environments for both teachers and pupils. The emergence of an American style, gang-driven sub-culture within city schools has left teachers ever-fearful of physical attack and has fundamentally undermined the confidence of parents in the ability of the state education system to secure the safety of their children while in its care.

Patricia Jaffe, head teacher of Kidbrooke School in London, recently summed up the prevailing culture within urban schools: "There is an atmosphere of fear which is really palpable around the children, who are young and extremely vulnerable....in twenty years of teaching I have never seen this kind of fear".

Mrs Jaffe's comments were made during a pre-trial hearing in the case of Nathan Brown, a fifteen year old boy later convicted for the brutal murder of Carl Rickard, only fourteen years old. Brown claimed to be a member of the '14K Triad gang' and led a section known as the 'Golden Snakes' at his school, Thomas Tallis School, in South East London. He and other members of the gang had planned in detail the attack on their victim which took place just outside the gates of Kidbrooke School. Carl Rickard was viciously punched and kicked by the eight strong gang until their 'leader', Nathan Brown, drew out a 17-inch machete and brought it down heavily on the boy's skull. Carl died two weeks later of severe brain injury.

In London alone, over the past two years there have been three other such attacks involving schoolboys claiming Triad affiliation. The muggers who stabbed John Mills, husband of Dame Barbara Mills (the Director of Public Prosecutions), and the youths responsible for the multiple rape and attempted murder of an Austrian tourist all boasted Triad connections. And headmaster Philip Lawrence was murdered outside his school by Learco Chindamo, aged 15, who also claimed to be a Triad.

Teachers within our secondary schools are unable to cope with the ever-increasing level of violent be-

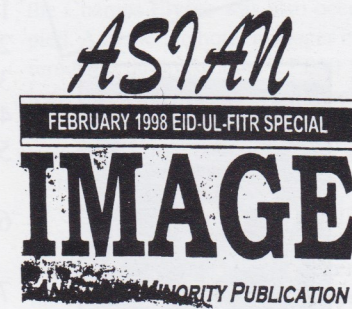

Carl Ricard - victim of school 'gang' violence

Blackburn's New Racist Newspaper

Blackburn has a new newspaper that is openly racist, to quote from their front page: "The local media treat the ethnic community with contempt rather than realise that we are the future of Blackburn and East Lancashire....". "Asian Image is the newspaper of the millennium when the minority will become majority". Ironically although claiming to be "an ethnic minority publication" on its mast heading, there is not one single mention of Africans, West Indians, or any other groups except "Asians".

One article of interest concerned the threat of a strike by Asian taxi drivers when "threatened" with stringent safety checks by Blackburn

Council. Mohammed Alam told Asian Image "The Council were victimising Asian taxi drivers and they had to stand up for themselves." - or perhaps Blackburn Council was simply trying to ensure the safety of passengers.

Does any Flag reader know of any other time when a Council has backed down over safety checks on hire vehicles, or is it a case of one law for them and one for us.

Despite the divisive nature of this publication the following were all happy to advertise in its first issue:-

The Mayor of Blackburn
Burger King
Army Careers
Blackburn Racial Equality Council
Blackburn College
Chief Superintendent Eddie Walsh - Lancashire Constabulary
Morrisons
Pizza Hut
Midland Bank

Destruction of West Sussex

woodland are gone, replaced by huge estates of new housing, factories and shopping parades. From Bognor Regis in the West to Brighton in the East, the Sussex coastal towns are separate in name only. One town runs into another with the 'out of town' factory sites the only barrier between each conurbation. The roads that run through this urban jungle are congested with traffic belching out such suffocating fumes that if there was a cycle outing from Shoreham to Littlehampton today, those taking part would probably need hospital treatment afterwards.

What a change in thirty years! And if you think things are bad now, then you had better sit down, because they are going to get much worse.

Deputy Prime Minister, John Prescott, has decreed that West Sussex County Council must build

50,700 new homes in the next 12 years. It's part of a larger Government plan that will see 4.4 million new houses built in the British countryside by 2016.

South Eastern England is one of the most densely populated areas in Europe. More houses mean more roads to accommodate more cars. What countryside is left will soon disappear under concrete and the quality of life of those families squashed together will suffer accordingly.

West Sussex, to meet Government housing plans, will have to build the equivalent of three new towns within the county's green belt. Three new towns accommodating up to 30,000 new residents each with all the strains and stresses such an influx will put local services under.

If more homes are needed, then they should be built in areas that require regeneration such as Scotland, Wales, East Anglia and Cumbria. Emphasis must be put on renovation of existing quality property rather than building new.

The National Democrats would argue that if 'the family' was officially encouraged instead of being denigrated so that there were less single people and lone parents requiring separate homes, if all immigration was halted and if illegal immigrants no longer held virtual immunity from expulsion, then such homes would not be needed in the first place.

The time has come to call a stop to any further development of South Eastern England in particular, and an erosion of the green belt in general. If our island is to remain a "green and pleasant land" then we must oppose the Government's house building programme.

Adverts in Schools may hit a problem

More and more schools are accepting the introduction of glossy advertisements on their walls in place of the more traditional pictures, poems, etc. created by school children. In desperation for money that is needed, often just to maintain the fabric of the school they are accepting payments from a number of commercial advertisers.

However figures from the government-backed Basic Skills Agency question whether advertisers are getting good value for their money. In a recent report this agency revealed that up to 8 million people in Britain struggle to read, write or work out simple sums.

Whether or not such advertisements should appear in schools at all is rather questionable. So far over 350 schools and colleges have signed up for such poster sites. How long will it be before: "This is the examination for GCSE English Literature sponsored by McDonalds, your time, sponsored by Swatch, starts now so please turn over your paper, sponsored by Wiggins Teape"?

Gun Fights On Manchester's Streets

The violence on Manchester's Moss Side estates has hit a new height with open gunfights on the streets. In one recent incident rival gangs staged a 'shoot-out' on open land only yards away from dozens of terrified families. Over 20 shots were fired. One local resident said: "I just ducked down with my daughter and we both stayed on the floor until the firing stopped".

Just 24 hours later two cars were riddled with bullets by gunmen, in Longsight. Chief Superintendent Glaister, commander of the South Manchester police division said: "We know who is doing what to whom". Moss Side is the drugs centre of North west England.

Spreads Across our Schools

dence of parents in the ability of the state education system to secure the safety of their children while in its care.

Patricia Jaffe, head teacher of Kidbrooke School in London, recently summed up the prevailing culture within urban schools: "There is an atmosphere of fear which is really palpable around the children, who are young and extremely vulnerable....in twenty years of teaching I have never seen this kind of fear".

Mrs Jaffe's comments were made during a pre-trial hearing in the case of Nathan Brown, a fifteen year old boy later convicted for the brutal murder of Carl Rickard, only fourteen years old. Brown claimed to be a member of the '14K Triad gang' and led a section known as the 'Golden Snakes' at his school, Thomas Tallis School, in South East London. He and other members of the gang had planned in detail the attack on their victim which took place just outside the gates of Kidbrooke School. Carl Rickard was viciously punched and kicked by the eight strong gang until their 'leader', Nathan Brown, drew out a 17-inch machete and brought it down heavily on the boy's skull. Carl died two hours later. The violence and behaviour displayed by some sections of their student population. They cannot guarantee the safety of the majority of well-disciplined children on school premises, nor can the ensure their own physical well-being.

If the Government does not take radical action now to combat this violent sub-culture, our schools will fall into the same spiral of deterioration and decline endemic within the American state education system.

The Prime Minister should take note that there will be little educational advantage in installing the Internet into "every classroom in Britain" if parents are too afraid to send their children to school!

Subscribe to 'The FLAG'

"Sign of a Nation great and strong."

they are going to get much worse. Deputy Prime Minister, John Prescott, has decreed that West Sussex County Council must build new residents each with all the strains and stresses such an influx will put local services under. If more homes are needed, then they should be built in areas that revision of the green belt in general. If our island is to remain a "green and pleasant land" then we must oppose the Government's house building programme.

sponsored by Wiggins Teape"?

Gun Fights On Manchester's Streets

The violence on Manchester's Moss Side estates has hit a new height with open gunfights on the streets. In one recent incident rival gangs staged a 'shoot-out' on open land only yards away from dozens of terrified families. Over 20 shots were fired. One local resident said: "I just ducked down with my daughter and we both stayed on the floor until the firing stopped".

Just 24 hours later two cars were riddled with bullets by gunmen in Longsight. Chief Superintendent Glaister, commander of the South Manchester police division said: "We know who is doing what to whom". Moss Side is the drugs centre of North west England.

ce Spreads Across our Schools

dence of parents in the ability of the state education system to secure the safety of their children while in its care.

Patricia Jaffe, head teacher of Kidbrooke School in London, recently summed up the prevailing culture within urban schools: "There is an atmosphere of fear which is really palpable around the children, who are young and extremely vulnerable....in twenty years of teaching I have never seen this kind of fear".

Mrs Jaffe's comments were made during a pre-trial hearing in the case of Nathan Brown, a fifteen year old boy later convicted for the brutal murder of Carl Rickard, only fourteen years old. Brown claimed to be a member of the '14K Triad gang' and led a section known as the 'Golden Snakes' at his school, Thomas Tallis School, in South East London. He and other members of the gang had planned in detail the attack on their victim which took place just outside the gates of Kidbrooke School. Carl Rickard was viciously punched and kicked by the eight strong gang until their 'leader', Nathan Brown, drew out a 17-inch machete and brought it down heavily on the boy's skull. Carl died two weeks later of severe brain injury.

In London alone, over the past two years there have been three other such attacks involving schoolboys claiming Triad affiliation. The muggers who stabbed John Mills, husband of Dame Barbara Mills (the Director of Public Prosecutions), and the youths responsible for the multiple rape and attempted murder of an Austrian tourist all boasted Triad connections. And headmaster Philip Lawrence was murdered outside his school by Learco Chindamo, aged 15, who also claimed to be a Triad.

Teachers within our secondary schools are unable to cope with the ever-increasing level of violent behaviour displayed by some sections of their student population. They cannot guarantee the safety of the majority of well-disciplined children on school premises, nor can they ensure their own physical well-being.

If the Government does not take radical action now to combat this violent sub-culture, our schools will fall into the same spiral of deterioration and decline endemic within the American state education system.

The Prime Minister should take note that there will be little educational advantage in installing the Internet into "every classroom in Britain" if parents are too afraid to send their children to school!

tim of school 'gang' violence

rn's New Racist Newspaper

Council. Mohammed Alam told Asian Image "The Council were victimising Asian taxi drivers and they had to stand up for themselves." - or perhaps Blackburn Council was simply trying to ensure the safety of passengers.

Does any Flag reader know of any other time when a Council has backed down over safety checks on hire vehicles, or is it a case of one law for them and one for us.

Despite the divisive nature of this publication the following were all happy to advertise in its first issue:-
The Mayor of Blackburn
Burger King
Army Careers
Blackburn Racial Equality Council
Blackburn College
Chief Superintendent Eddie Walsh - Lancashire Constabulary
Morrisons
Pizza Hut
Midland Bank

Subscribe to 'The FLAG'

*"Sign of a Nation great and strong,
To ward her people from foreign wrong;
Pride and glory and honour - all,
Live in the colours to stand and fall!"*

Please find enclosed my subscription of £16.00 for two copies of the next 12 issues of The FLAG.
Cheques/Postal Orders made payable to 'The FLAG'. Overseas subscriptions £26.00 for one copy AIR MAIL.

NAME

ADDRESS

Please return this form together with your remittance to : The Secretary, P.O.Box 2269, London E6 3RF.

• There is a special subscription rate for members of the National Democrats only: United Kingdom £14.00: Overseas £24.00.

The Destruction of West Sussex

THE COASTAL TOWNS and villages of West Sussex were amongst the most picturesque that Britain had to offer in the mid-1960's. All were surrounded by fields and woodlands, with the shops just a stone's throw from beaches boarded by pine trees.

In 1967 I took part in a school outing on bicycles from Shoreham to Littlehampton. It was a glorious day's ride through Lancing, Worthing, Goring, Ferring, East Preston and Rustington. As we passed in and out of the town boundaries we were met by superb countryside and the freshest air imaginable and, although there was other traffic on the road, no exhaust fumes could compete with the power of the country smells of rural England.

Thirty years on things are much changed. From Shoreham to Littlehampton now is just one great urban sprawl. The green fields and woodland are gone, replaced by huge estates of new housing, factories and shopping parades. From Bognor Regis in the West to Brighton in the East, the Sussex coastal towns are separate in name only. One town runs into another with the 'out of town' factory sites the only barrier between each conurbation. The roads that run through this urban jungle are congested with traffic belching out such suffocating fumes that if there was a cycle outing from Shoreham to Littlehampton today, those taking part would probably need hospital treatment afterwards.

What a change in thirty years! And if you think things are bad now, then you had better sit down, because they are going to get much worse.

Deputy Prime Minister, John Prescott, has decreed that West Sussex County Council must build

50,700 new homes in the next 12 years. It's part of a larger Government plan that will see 4.4 million new houses built in the British countryside by 2016.

South Eastern England is one of the most densely populated areas in Europe. More houses mean more roads to accommodate more cars. What countryside is left will soon disappear under concrete and the quality of life of those families squashed together will suffer accordingly.

West Sussex, to meet Government housing plans, will have to build the equivalent of three new towns within the county's green belt. Three new towns accommodating up to 30,000 new residents each with all the strains and stresses such an influx will put local services under.

If more homes are needed, then they should be built in areas that require regeneration such as Scotland, Wales, East Anglia and Cumbria. Emphasis must be put on renovation of existing quality property rather than building new.

The National Democrats would argue that if 'the family' was officially encouraged instead of being denigrated so that there were less single people and lone parents requiring separate homes, if all immigration was halted and if illegal immigrants no longer held virtual immunity from expulsion, then such homes would not be needed in the first place.

The time has come to call a stop to any further development of South Eastern England in particular, and an erosion of the green belt in general. If our island is to remain a "green and pleasant land" then we must oppose the Government's house building programme.

Violence Spreads Across our Schools

SECONDARY SCHOOLS in Britain's urban areas are becoming increasingly more dangerous environments for both teachers and pupils. The emergence of an American style, gang-driven sub-culture within city schools has left teachers ever-fearful of physical attack and has fundamentally undermined the confidence of parents in the ability of the state education system to secure the safety of their children while in its care.

Patricia Jaffe, head teacher of Kidbrooke School in London, recently summed up the prevailing culture within urban schools: "There is an atmosphere of fear which is really palpable around the children, who are young and extremely vulnerable....in twenty years of teaching I have never seen this kind of fear".

Mrs Jaffe's comments were made during a pre-trial hearing in the case of Nathan Brown, a fifteen year old boy later convicted for the brutal murder of Carl Rickard, only fourteen years old. Brown claimed to be a member of the '14K Triad gang' and led a section known as the 'Golden Snakes' at his school, Thomas Tallis School, in South East London. He and other members of the gang had planned in detail the attack on their victim which took place just outside the gates of Kidbrooke School. Carl Rickard was viciously punched and kicked by the eight strong gang until their 'leader', Nathan Brown, drew out a 17-inch machete and brought it down heavily on the boy's skull. Carl died two weeks later of severe brain injury.

behaviour displayed by some sections of their student population. They cannot guarantee the safety of the majority of well-disciplined children on school premises, nor can they ensure their own physical well-being.

If the Government does not take radical action now to combat this violent sub-culture, our schools will fall into the same spiral of deterioration and decline endemic within the American state education system.

The Prime Minister should take note that there will be little educational advantage in installing the Internet into "every classroom in Britain" if parents are too afraid to send their children to school!

Subscribe to 'T

"Sign of a Nation gre
To ward her people fr